Order Is Effective Immediately

Nixon Deep Freezes Meat Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has imposed a ceiling on supermarket and wholesale meat prices, effective now, while he seeks a permanent cure to soaring food costs.

Spurred by housewife unhappiness and meat-counter boycotts, the President told the nation Thursday night he was switching economic signals and in effect freezing beef, pork and lamb prices at about their current levels.

Disclosure of the meat-price ceiling was tucked into a televised address hailing the end of U.S. involvement in Vietnam, sternly warning Hanoi to quit violating the peace agreement, and calling for public support in his budget battle with Congress.

Members of Congress generally supported Nixon's economic move. But some Democrat raised a cry of "too little, too late" and said they would continue to push for a freeze on all prices. And leaders of a nationwide consumers' boycott said they intend to carry out their plans despite the presidential action.

"This is not enough. We boycott," said June Donovan of Los Angeles, one of the planners of the week-long boycott of meat and poultry scheduled to begin on Sunday.

Among Congressional reaction to the Nixon order:

"A long step in the right direction," said Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania.

"A formula for shortages," said Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis.

"Fundamentally a mistake," said House Agriculture Committee Chairman W. R Poage, D-Tex. "I just don't think it will bring about a reduction in anything except the supply of meat."

In his 20-minute address, Nixon made only fleeting reference to housewife unhappiness, but sources reported it was a major factor in causing him to discard his insistence that food-prices curbs wouldn't work.

Nixon said his administration was making progress in the over-all fight against inflation, then conceded that positive statistics "are no comfort at all to the housewife who sees meat prices soaring every time she goes to the market."

"What we need is action that will stop the rise in meat prices now," he said after recounting recent steps to increase supplies and bring prices down later this year.

"That is why I have today ordered the Cost of Living Council to impose a ceiling on prices of beef, pork and lamb," the President said, adding:

"The ceiling will remain in effect as long as is necessary to do the job. Meat prices must not go higher. With the help of the housewife and farmer, they can and should go down."

Here, according to administration officials, are the major points of the meat-price ceiling and related Nixon actions:

—Effective at 9 p.m. EST Thursday, meat retailers, wholesalers and processors cannot charge more than a figure computed on the basis of sales for the past 30 days. In most cases, the price ceiling will be at or slightly below current levels. The ceiling does not apply to poultry or seafood.

—By April 9, ceiling-price information must be posted at all meat counters. Internal Revenue Service agents will police the ceiling, just a. they did the 1971 across-the-board price freeze.

—A special clause allows sellers of imported meat to pass along, dollar-for-dollar, any cost increases they incur. But this provision does not apply to domestically produced meat.

—The administration, meanwhile, is asking Congress to promptly give Nixon authority to suspend tariffs on products in short supply. This could affect, for example, imports of meat and other materials such as lumber.

Nixon's ceiling order does not apply at the farm level—prices of "cattle on the hoof and pigs with a squeal" won't be affected, Treasury Secretary George Shultz said.

Shultz said continued exemption of raw farm prices from controls is necessary to encourage increases in meat and crop production Boosts in production are a key to the administration's long-term strategy to use the pressure of supply-and-demand to bring down consumer prices.

Shultz also said housewives "can help bring about an end to rising meat prices by resisting high prices and by shopping wisely."

In his address, Nixon said the meat-price ceiling will help in the battle against inflation but said "it is not a permanent solution."

With this as an introduction, he turned to his battle of the budget with Congress.

Gruesome Stories Of POW Torture

By United Press International

American prisoners of war were permitted for the first time Thursday to tell of the gruesome aspects of their confinement. With the silence broken, the men poured out details of beatings, starvation, solitary confinement, psychological harassment and torture.

Many of the men said they gave in to their captors after extreme physical abuse.

"None of us signed these statements voluntarily," said Army Maj. Floyd J. Thompson, New Milford, N.J., the longest-held POW of the war. "Most of us did it with death staring us in the face. It was either die or sign it and my attitude was I wasn't going to die for a propaganda statement."

Air Force Lt. Col. John A. Dramesi, Blackwood, N.J., said he believed his friend in prison, Edwin Atterberry of Dallas, was tortured to death. Atterberry was listed by North Vietnam as having died in prison, but Hanoi did not give the cause.

Since the U.S. prisoners began being released Feb. 12, they steadfastly refused to discuss torture and abuse in Communist prison camps for fear others still held captive would suffer for their remarks.

But with the release Thursday of the last POWs in North Vietnam, the Pentagon said they could answer any questions that came up. At news conferences across the country, the POWs told their stories.

Some of the physical punishment they endured included:

—Air Force Capt. Norman McDaniel, Greensboro, N.C., said he was hanged from a ceiling so that his feet barely touched the floor. He said he passed out.

—Navy Cmdr. Richard A. Stratton, Palo Alto, Calif., was burned with cigarettes and had his fingernails bent back.

—M.Sgt. Harvey G. Brande, Long Beach, Calif., had dirty bamboo stuck into his wounds.

—Air Force Maj. Robert Jeffrey, Dallas, said he was forced to wear long, heavy clothing during stifling summer heat while isolated in a seven-foot-square cell.

—Sgt. Don A. MacPhail, Lowell, Mass., said he was hung over a tree limb and beaten for four hours. "There were three graves beneath me and I was told that I would be in the fourth."

—Marine Lt. Col. John Howard Dunn, Neptune Beach, Fla., said he was tied in a tight ball with straps and ropes and his captors manipulated his limbs into grotesque positions. He said his arm was useless for six months following one such encounter.

—Navy Capt. Jeremiah Denton, Virginia Beach, Va., said he "confessed" after his captors "put a 10-foot long iron bar on top of my shins and two men walked it up and down."

—Air Force Lt. Cmdr. Rodney A. Knutson, Billings, Mont., said he was beaten on the buttocks so badly blood splattered the wall and was then forced to sit on his wounds for six days. After that, he could only stand bent at a 90 degree angle because the scabs had healed.

The POWs were denied food and water for periods of time; many reported being tied up in odd positions; those injured said they weren't treated, and there were multiple beatings—Navy Cmdr. Eugene B. McDaniel, Kinston, N.C., estimated he was beaten 600 to 700 times in one week with an automobile fan belt.

McCord's Watergate Sentencing Off Until June 15

Liddy Is Ordered to Give Testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sentencing of James W. McCord Jr., the source of new allegations that top White House aides knew of plans for the Watergate affair, was postponed today until June 15.

G. Gordon Liddy, described as the organizer and boss of the conspiracy, was sentenced a week ago to serve at least six years, eight months, in prison.

Judge Sirica today ordered him to testify before the grand jury, granting him immunity from prosecution for anything he might say.

Liddy's lawyer had opposed compelling Liddy to testify.

Chief U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica delayed the sentencing to give McCord time to complete testimony to a Senate committee on Watergate and to a federal grand jury looking into the same thing.

McCord, 54, the former security chief for President Nixons re-election committee, was convicted Jan. 30 of conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping of Democratic headquarters in the Watergate office complex.

Five of his co-defendants—all of whom pleaded guilty—had also won delays in final sentencing to give them an opportunity to cooperate with investigators.

Sources quoted by the Baltimore Sun were reported today to have told Senate investigators that presidential aide H. R. Haldeman was fully aware of the Watergate wiretap plans.

The Sun said in today's editions that Haldeman, President Nixon's chief of staff, was described not as taking an active part in planning the Watergate bugging but only of knowing about the plan.

The story was attributed to congressional sources said to be familiar with McCord's testimony before a special Senate committee investigating the break-in and wiretapping of Democratic headquarters in the Watergate building last June.

The Sun said McCord told investigators that White House officials promised executive clemency for any of the seven Watergate defendants who pleaded guilty, as well as aid for their families. He would not name the officials.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler has repeatedly denied that any present White House official had advance knowledge of or participated in the Watergate operation.

Meanwhile, Republican Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. of Connecticut told reporters Thursday that the Watergate incident was just a small part of the Republican espionage and sabotage against Democrats in the 1972 presidential campaign.

He said he thinks the operation was directed by someone in the White House. And he added that that official still is in the White House although he has "absolute confidence" that Nixon knew nothing about the Watergate tactics.

The Washington Post reported in today's editions that McCord has refused 20 times to answer questions from the committee, on grounds of possible self-incrimination.

Murder Trial in Final Stages...

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON

Attorneys for the defense and prosecution gave their summations in County Court today before a ten-man, two-woman jury that will decide whether Jack Duane Lewis was sane or insane the night he allegedly murdered 17-year-old Colleen Thurin of Kingston.

The jury was expected to begin its deliberations late today, following an afternoon charge by County Court Judge Raymond J. Mino.

Lewis, a 28-year-old ex-convict and parolee who previously served five years for manslaughter, was arrested Aug. 29, 1972 for the murder of the 17-year-old Kingston High School co-ed. Miss Thurin was found badly beaten along South Putt Corners Road in the Town of New Paltz on Aug. 26; she died three days later at Benedictine Hospital.

Robert Ricken, Lewis' court-appointed defense attorney, has entered a plea of innocent by reason of insanity for his client.

Testimony began ten days ago, but for the past week has concentrated almost exclusively on the question of the defendant's sanity or insanity. Four different psychiatrists have testified; two said Lewis was sane, two said he was not.

In his summation to the jury today, Ricken said the primary question that must be decided is whether Lewis' acts the night of the alleged murder were "the acts of a sane human being."

The defense attorney described the wounds sustained by the victim during the alleged beating, and then asked, "what was the state of mind of an individual who inflicted these kinds of wounds on someone who went with him willingly? . . . The DA would have you believe that Lewis is your average, run of the mill, sane rapist, if there is such a thing."

District Attorney Francis J. Vogt, in his summation said there was no doubt in his mind that Lewis committed the alleged murder, and he related evidence that allegedly connected the defendant to the crime.

Vogt referred specifically to Lewis' medallion found at the scene. His voice heavy with sarcasm, Vogt said, "sure he left it as his calling card; sure he wanted to be caught."

Referring to the defendant's plea of insanity, Vogt said, "he knows he can't beat this thing, so he says 'I'm insane'." Speaking of the insanity plea, Vogt said, "it's a phony, period. It's a depraved, desperate attempt to avoid the consequences of his horrible crime."

In testimony Thursday afternoon, Dr. Walter Osinski, a Loudonville psychiatrist and director of the Albany County Mental Health Clinic, who examined Lewis Feb. 11 at the request of the district attorney, told the court that the defendant displayed "no evidence of psychotic behavior."

Dr. Osinski disagreed with earlier psychiatric testimony that labeled Lewis as a "pathological intoxicant," a form of legal insanity that leads to loss of memory and abusive and belligerent behavior after the consumption of alcohol. Dr. Osinski said Lewis' actions the night of the alleged murder were not the actions of someone "out of control."

Under cross-examination, however, Dr. Osinski admitted that he did not know Lewis had once been confined to a mental facility, and conceded that such information would have played an important part in his diagnosis.

Reapportionment Controversy:

City GOPers to Run 13 Aldermen

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

Mayor Francis R. Koenig will hold a public hearing on a Common Council approved 11-ward reapportionment plan for the city on Wednesday night, but City Republicans intend to run 13 aldermen, not 11, claiming the Democratic plan is illegal.

"The reapportionment machinery started too slow and too late," Frank Fabbie, GOP city chairman, told The Freeman. "We're filing under what is effective today, 13 wards and 26 districts." Each ward has two voting districts; under the Democratic 11-ward plan there would be 22 districts).

Fabbie is contending, that according to the state political calendar which sets a primary dae of June 4, the city should have had an approved reapportionment plan by March 12. He said the period for signing designating petitions for candidates, again according to the state political calendar, was between March 12 and March 22.

Alderman Donald E. Quick (D-Sixth Ward), chairman of the Common Council's special committee on reapportionment, announced on March 2 that he had final official census figures with which to draw up a plan. On March 8, Alderman Titus B. Sims (R-13th Ward) published a 13-ward plan for the city, based on that plan. That same night, Quick stated that the Democrats did not have a plan (yet drawn) and asked the Republicans for the Sims Plan at a meeting of the Reapportionment Committee. He was refused.

The Common Council met on March 19 for the first official reading of the 11-ward plan and again on March 27 for final approval of the Council. The plan becomes law, if and when Koenig signs it which will have to be after his public hearing set for 7 p.m. next Wednesday in the council chambers.

Democrats, throughout the city, caucused in the 11 new wards just prior to the night of the March 27 meeting of the Council and those candidates were nominated at the city convention on March 28.

Fabbie's point apparently is that those candidates were nominated under a plan that was not official, since at the time of those nominations the Council hadn't approved it (for the second time) and the mayor had yet to sign it.

"How can they nominate candidates under a plan that isn't approved yet?" Fabbie asked. "Suppose Koenig vetoed the legislation after his public hearing? Where would they be then?"

So, Fabbie says, the Republicans are nominating 13 candidates with the city "as is," that is, under the present reapportionment plan, which went into effect on Jan. 1, 1968.

"We're not reapportioning at all," Fabbie said, "because the powers that be would not accept our plan and since we had no other recourse, we followed the present plan that the Common Council is built on."

That statement apparently clears up another misconception about reapportionment, that the Republicans nomiated their candidates under the "Sims Plan" on March 14 when they met in convention. "They were not nominated under the Sims Plan," Fabbie confirmed. "The only reason we brought the Sims Plan (to the convention) was to show what Sims was trying to present to the Reapportionment Committee. All we approved was the submission of that plan to the Reapportionment Committee, which Sims did" (on March 12).

The last date for filing nominating petitions is April 12. It may prove confusing for workers at the board of elections. The Republicans, Fabbie says, will file for 13 alderman under the 1968 reapportionment plan. The Democrats will file for 11 aldermen under their 1973 reapportionment plan.

It is expected that the courts will have the last word.

Landfill Use... Decrease Noted

KINGSTON

City officials say it's still too early to tell, but they have noticed a decrease in persons dumping at the landfill at Kingston Point since mandatory fees went into effect on Monday.

The city ran a survey for two weeks prior to initiating fees on March 26 in an effort to find out just who was using the landfill and to what extent. "There was a hodge podge of people using it," Woodrow M. Diehl, administrative assistant to the Board of Public Works, told The Freeman today. "Lots of people were coming in from all over because it was free and it was open." The idea behind the fees approved by Mayor Francis R. Koenig and the Board of Public Works on March 7, was to make the landfill competitive with surrounding town dumps and therefore extend the life of Kingston's landfill which is expected to be depleted late this year. "We have noticed a decrease," Diehl said, referring to the first three days under the fee schedule compared to the two-week survey period.

But meanwhile the trash continues to mount and the city is rapidly approaching the point where it will have to abandon the landfill and find a new one, in all likelihood, outside the city.

The city is limited, by the Ulster County Health Department, to a fill level of 10 feet above sea level. "We're at about nine and a half feet now," a DPW spokesman told The Freeman.

The city's problem has been obvious for some time: no one wants a city landfill in their township. The city's solution, perhaps the only solution it has, is to convince surrounding towns that a city-operated landfill in their area would not be such an ogre. And the city hopes to do that by example, an example of what a "properly managed" landfill can become.

"We intend to create a showcase down there to show other areas what it will be," Diehl said. Koenig's 1973 budget includes funds for just that purpose, funds for extensive landscaping once the landfill reaches optimum level.

City officials are hoping that the creation of a "showcase" and the fact that Kingston Point was one of the few landfills in Ulster County that was cited as being "properly operated" will give the city something in the way of a bargaining position with leaders from surrounding towns in the city's quest for a new landfill.

Schermerhorn Asks Meeting

KINGSTON

State officials are seeking the Common Council's opinion of important matters, changes in the (city) judiciary and reform of the state pension system.

State Senator Richard C. Schermerhorn (R-Cornwall) who represents Kingston, southern Ulster County and Orange County, has requested a meeting with the Common Council to review the Kinzel Commission report on the state pension system, delivered to Gov. Rockegeller in January. The Kinzel Commission proposes a uniform pension system for all public employes and elected officials. The aldermen are expected to meet with Sen. Schermerhorn sometime next month.

Also on file is a letter from the State Appelate Division, Third Judicial Department, on proposal to extend the terms of all city judges to six years. Kingston city judges are currently elected to four-year terms. That letter will be referred to the Laws and Rules Committee and the Election Committee of the Council for study.

The aldermen met Tuesday night at 8 p.m. at city hall and are expected to approve by the urban renewal agency the sale of land on Hurley Avenue to the Rondout National Bank for a branch office and the sale of the Kiersted House on John and Green Streets to the Friends of Historic Kingston for restoration.

Some 140 residents of the Pine Grove Avenue, Susan Street, Valley Street, Sterling Street and Summer Street area have filed a petition in opposition to the 11-ward reapportionment plan which divides their neighborhood between the new 12th and new Fourth Wards.

Assessors to Meet

The Board of Assessors of the Town of Hurley will meet for the convenience of property owners who wish to discuss assessments on the following schedule: West Hurley Firehouse, April 6 from 7 to 9 p.m. and Hurley Library, April 13 from 7 to 9 p.m. The assessors will assist eligible taxpayers in filling out aged exemption forms also.

SAIGON (UPI) — Army Chief M.Sgt. Max Bielke, carrying a handsome Chinese-style rattan scroll given him by the North Vietnamese, climbed up the ramp of a shining C141 Air Force transport Thursday and became the "last" U.S. soldier to leave Vietnam.

Shortly before Bielke boarded the four-engine jet at a little after 5 p.m. (4 a.m. EST), Thursday, 2,500 other Americans, including Gen. Frederick Weyand, commander of American forces in Vietnam, made similar trips.

At one time there were 543,000 American troops in Vietnam. Now there are only 1,034 men left. However, 825 of those have been working for the recently disbanded Joint Military Commission (JMC) and will leave Saturday. Technically, they are not part of the troop contingent.

After Saturday, the only Americans still in uniform will be 159 Marine guards at the Saigon embassy and 50 soldiers assigned to the Defense Attache Office (DAO).

Bielke, from Alexandria, Minn., was in charge of seeing that everyone got on their planes.

Bielke, completing his first tour in Vietnam, checked off the men's names as they boarded the plane, then prepared to climb the ramp.

At the last minute, Lt. Col. Bui Tin, the spokesman for the North Vietnamese on the now-and presented Bielke with a scroll. It was a pagoda painted on a bamboo mat.

Bielke, looking beiwildered, thanked Tin, posed for photographs by the North Vietnamese men on hand to film the American departure and went up the ramp.

A few minutes before Bielke climbed aboard, an Air Force Colonel opened a bottle of champagne and passed it around to several Vietnamese Air Force (VNAF) officers standing nearby.

Air Force T. Sgt. Marvin Macy, 39, of Ellington, Mo., and Salina, Kan., also took a swig. Macy will retire from the service when he gets back to the States and apply for a job with the customs service.

Macy, who served six tours in Vietnam, had to take several pelts from the bottle to comply with requests from television crews filming the event.

Also among the last to leave was Air Force T. Sgt. Robert Johnson, 39, of Woodburn, Mass. Johnson will also retire when he gets back home after spending 19 years and 8 months in the service. Johnson said he wants to be an air conditioner service man.

Just before Weyand boarded his C135, the military version of a Boeing 707, 5-foot-tall Vietnamese WACs stretched to put a garland of flowers around the neck of the 6-foot-6 general. Weyand, who bent deeply to receive the flowers, grinned widely and seemed very happy.

U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker standing next to Weyand looked sad and appeared to have tears in his eyes.

SALUDE! — Army Master Sgt. Vincent Jacobucci of New York City proposese last toast with bottle of champagne, given to him by a wellwisher in Saigon, South Vietnam, before boarding plane for trip back to U. S. soil. The role of U. S. forces in Vietnam officially ended Thursday. (UPI)

American POWs . . . 'Highly Organized'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

American prisoners of war in North Vietnam set up their own, highly organized, military-style commands despite objections from their captors and concentrated on mental and physical exercises to keep themselves fit, former POWs disclosed Thursday. There were some attempts by the Communists at brainwashing, but they were ineffective, the men indicated.

A picture of life in the prison camps began to emerge as the last of the known prisoners were freed. The men released earlier had declined to comment on their conditions for fear of jeopardizing the safety of those still in captivity.

The last of the 587 Americans whom Hanoi reported captives at the time of the signing of the cease-fire agreements two months ago landed at Clark Air Base in the Philippines Thursday. The 67 U.S. prisoners of war arrived aboard two C141 transports at their first stop on the way nome. The Viet Cong has announced that another man — not named on previous lists — will be freed this weekend.

Air Force Lt. Col. Norman L. Wells of Unionville, Va., who was taken prisoner on Aug. 29, 1966, described life in captivity during a recent interview held for release when the last of the POWs returned. He said each camp had a definite command structure with a senior ranking officer in each cell, each building and each camp.

Complete staffs were drawn up, Wells said, along the lines of an Air Force wing. "It even provided for units that might be detached from the wing" — sent to other camps — Wells said.

Wells noted "a strong organization with very definite leadership was possible."

Capt. Robert A. Abbott of Deckerville, Mich., who was captured April 30, 1967, described a similar set-up during a recent interview.

"We had a strong military organization in the camps," he said, "even though the Vietnamese wouldn't recognize it or allow it. We had a wing commander set up, squadrons set up, flights set up. It worked just like a military organization. Things went up channels and down channels.

"This helped us keep our minds busy, helped us to do something and maybe this helped us to maintain our will and good attitude toward the military."

Wells said each prison cell had a public address speaker and the North Vietnamese "pumped a lot of garbage through that thing; plus, for a time, we heard the Voice of Vietnam aimed at soldiers in South Vietnam."

Wells said the Voice of Vietnam broadcasts to the POWs were discontinued in June or July of 1968.

Address Planned

Mahatma Trevinanand Ji, a disciple of 15-year-old Perfect Master Guru Mahara Ji, will speak Monday, April 2 at 7:30 p.m. in Lecture Center 102 of the State University College at New Paltz. His address will be on the Divine Knowledge of the Soul given freely to those who seek it.

Board Member

John A. Powers of New Paltz, sanitary engineer of Ulster County Health Department, was recently elected a member of the executive board of the New York Water Pollution Control Association for 1973. Powers succeeds Frederick C. Wadnola of the Town of Ulster, administrator of the Sanitary Division of the Ulster County Health Department, who served the past several years. The association membership consists of Westchester, Rockland, Orange, Ulster, Sullivan, Putnam and Dutchess Counties. The election was held recently at Rockland County Office Building, New City.

Scotts Pre Spring Sale
This Sale will make you see green!

There's one thing every lawn needs in spring...feeding!

It's the single most important thing you can do for any lawn in spring. And when it comes to feeding, more lawnowners choose TURF BUILDER than any other fertilizer. Turf Builder isn't like those "flash in the pan" fertilizers that release their nutrients fast, causing surge growth and extra mowing. Instead Turf Builder feeds slowly, over a prolonged period of time. Result? Your lawn greens up. Grows denser and sturdier. And it stays that way longer too, thanks to Scotts patented Trionized bonding.

Save $1.50	15,000 sq ft (58½ lbs)	Reg. 14.75	13.25

Comparable savings on Super Turf Builder, which has even more greening power than regular Turf Builder, with no increase in weight.

This worksaver prevents crabgrass as it feeds!

It's called HALTS PLUS For Established Lawns and it combines a prolonged Scotts feeding with effective crabgrass prevention. You spread it in early spring, before crabgrass starts to grow. It forms an invisible barrier that knocks off the ugly stuff as it sprouts. At the same time your fertilized grass grows thicker, greener and sturdier. Saves you time, effort—and money too!

Two Planeloads of Flag-Waving POWs Head Home

CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (UPI) — The United States airlifted two planeloads of flag-waving American prisoners of war home today, men who were among the last to leave their prison camps in North Vietnam.

"Thank God for people like you and that wonderful American spirit that has never died," said Navy Lt. Cmdr. Phillip A. Kientzler, 32, Poway, Calif., the last pilot shot down prior to the cease-fire agreement. "Even in our darkest hours we knew you would never forget us."

Kientzler, who was shot down Jan. 27, the day before the cease-fire went into effect, led 14 men onto a C141 flying to Travis Air Force Base, Calif. A plane left earlier carrying 18 men bound for Kelly AFB, Tex. The 32 were released by the Viet Cong Tuesday.

Their departure left 116 American POWs and a Canadian at Clark Air Base undergoing reprocessing. More of these men were expected to leave this weekend.

The men flying home and those left at Clark were the last of 587 U.S. POWs released by the Communists in conjunction with the withdrawal of American troops from South Vietnam. An Army captain was still held by the Viet Cong but he was expected to be released next week.

All the men released this week by North Vietnam were shot down within the past year. Most are in excellent physical condition and have few personal problems because of their relatively short stay in captivity.

A reliable military source said the most recent returnees from North Vietnam do not have the torture stories that were being related by the prisoners released earlier and now in the United States.

About 100 dependents at Clark Air Base saw the 32 men off today, loading them down with leis and posters, kisses, cheers and hugs.

Army Col. Benjamin H. Purcell, 45, the senior man among the POWs returning today, told the crowd in a firm voice:

"The treatment we have received here has strengthened our faith in the goodness and brotherhood of man. You have earned our lasting gratitude."

With that, Purcell, who clutched a small American flag in his hand, wandered over to the crowd and then aboard the aircraft. His men followed, each wading into the small crowd for their personalized sendoff.

Our Last Ground Troops Gone From Viet Soil

TRAVIS AFB, Calif. (UPI) — The last 1,300 ground troops from America's longest war arrived home Thursday night to pomp and ceremony, a nippy wind and a lengthy customs line.

Six C141 Starlifters carried the soldiers to United States soil, where they marched down a red carpet, saluted a color guard and to the cheers of a small crowd ended "Operation Withdrawal."

It's been 14 years and a total involvement of 2.5 million Americans, many of whom returned in caskets at this same sprawling air base.

The last aircraft carried 54 returnees and the colors of the 90th Replacement Co., which were to be furled and put away in a brief ceremony symbolically ending the nation's formal involvement in the conflict.

Stepping from the sixth plane was the last military woman and the last Army man to leave Vietnam. One soldier carried a tennis racquet and another a souvenir screen presented by the North Vietnamese.

They arrived to the same welcome accorded the returning prisoners of war, in addition to the traditional steak dinner and a wait of up to two hours while going through the U.S. Customs check.

"I think we did the job we were sent to do and as all the speeches have said, with honor," said Air Force Col. David Odell, 49, Crystal Lake, Ill., and one of the last two men to board the final plane in Saigon. "Our mission was executed very well."

Air Force Chief M.Sgt. Vincent R. Jacobucci, 44, New York, arrived at Travis exactly one year from when his Vietnam duty began.

"I'm glad to get the job done and to get home. I feel just fine," he said. "We had a lot of things to do. We were busy right to the end."

Maj. Beverley Huber, 36, Fredericktown, N.J., was the first Air Force woman to be sent to Vietnam in 1967. She volunteered to go back for a second tour and Thursday became the last military woman to return.

The last Army man to leave Vietnam, M.Sgt. Max J. Beilke, 40, Laurel, Md., smiled and held up a bamboo scroll with a painting of a pagoda that was presented him by North Vietnamese Lt. Col. Bui Tin.

U.S. troops were gone from South Vietnam today but fighting persisted in much of Southeast Asia with U.S. warplanes raiding more Comunist targets in Cambodia and Communist gunners shelling a government base in South Vietnam.

Saigon command spokesman Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien accused the Communists of 105 more truce violations in the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today. Among them, he said, was the shelling of a South Vietnamese ranger base 50 miles north of Saigon.

Hien said one ranger was killed and 25 wounded in the 1,355-round mortar, artillery and rocket barrage at Tong Le Chan over a five-hour period ending at 2 a.m. today. He said it was one of the heaviest shellings on record since the truce began Jan. 28.

Military sources in Phnom Penh said U.S. B52 bombers struck Communist targets in Cambodia for the 23rd consecutive day today. But they said bad weather kept the big planes away from their priority targets in the capital area.

A Cambodian military spokesman said government troops recaptured vital Highway 4, which links the capital with its chief port at Kompong Som, after U.S. air strikes there.

Cambodia is the only country in Indochina with no formal truce.

Nixon, Thieu to Confer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon leaves today for summit talks in California with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu after warning Hanoi again it faces reprisals unless it complies with the cease-fire agreement.

Nixon will confer Monday and Tuesday with Thieu at the Western White House at San Clemente. The Saigon leader was expected to seek assurances from Nixon on future air support, if the war flares up again, and the scope of United States assistance that will be provided to bolster his regime.

The President, in a nationwide television address Thursday night, appeared to be offering those assurances.

While hailing the end of the longest war in the nation's history, Nixon said "there are still some problem areas."

"The provisions of the agreement requiring an accounting for all missing in action in Indochina, the provisions with regard to Laos and Cambodia and the provisions prohibiting infiltration from North Vietnam into South Vietnam have not been complied with.

"We have and will continue to comply with the agreement," he said. "We shall insist that North Vietnam comply with the agreement. The leaders of North Vietnam should have no doubt as to the consequences if they fail to comply with the agreement."

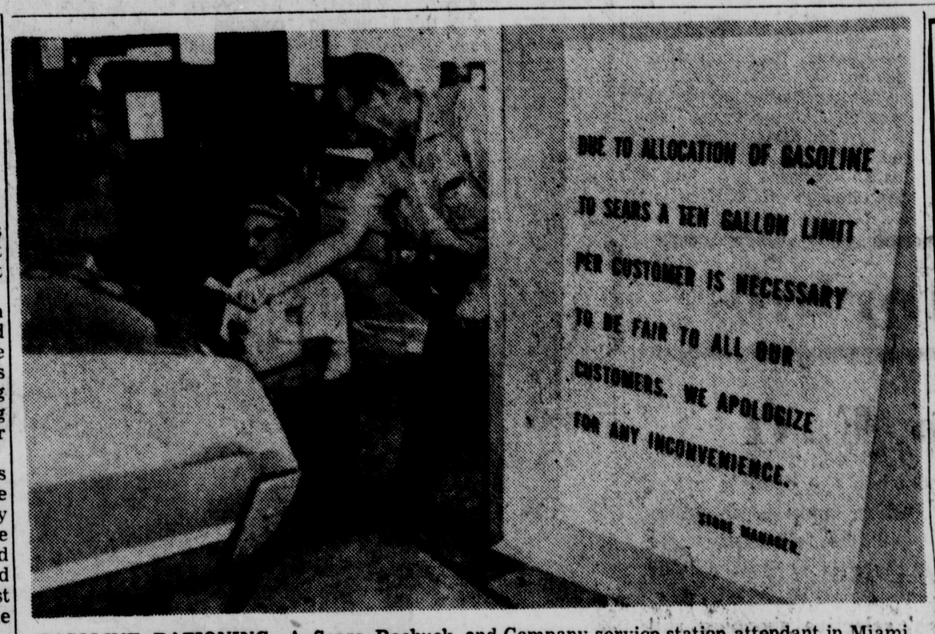

Nixon obviously was repeating his warning of March 15 at a news conference that if the Communists continue to pour men and supplies into South Vietnam, he would resume the bombing.

At the same time, Nixon said that despite continued "difficulties" the Vietnamization program worked and "we have prevented the imposition of a Communist government by force on South Vietnam."

"We can be proud of the fact that we have achieved our goal of obtaining an agreement which provides peace with honor in Vietnam," he said.

"For the first time in 12 years, no American military forces are stationed in Vietnam. All of our American POWs are now on their way home. The 17 million people of South Vietnam have the right to choose their own government without outside interference."

Agnew Attacks Critics

HAUPPAUGE, N.Y. (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew defended Thursday night President Nixon's cutting of federal social programs as an attempt to "revise, reduce or eliminate those programs that just haven't done the job."

He said continued revenue sharing and a turn away from an emphasis on the federal role in the programs would promote "a healthy revival of self-reliance and a private and community initiative which can launch this nation into a new era of progress."

Agnew attacked those he called "predictable critics," and said they made "groundless and bufuddled charges" against the budget cuts.

"Who is balking? Many of the same over-zealous, if well-intentioned, reformers who first pressured for these federal failures," he said.

Agnew said increased federal spending has contributed to inflation and the failure of social programs and to a reduction of confidence in the government.

He said citizens find it difficult "to keep track of and influence how his money is spent when it is in the hands of anonymous and remote bureaucrats in Washington."

"He would rather it would be spent by state and local officials—people more sensitive to his approval or disapproval than to the national social architects who bully the federal bureaucracy," he said.

Agnew said the aim is to 'restore the federal role to a cooperative rather than an imperial one."

Agnew spoke at a $125-a-plate dinner sponsored by the Suffolk County Republican Committee and attended by 5,000 persons.

Meat Prices to Fall

Clarence G. Adamy, president of the National Association of Food Chains, reports a decline in meat sales and forecasts a decline in prices very shortly. Adamy conducts an almost daily telephone survey of the major national chains. His information is continuously undated.

In February, Adamy found the average sales decrease was 2 to 4 per cent. Recently, five chains have been averaging a 10 to 15 per cent decline trend. Also, two of three major packers, with whom he checked, recently reported a decline in orders from retailers.

Crediting housewives for the decline in demand for meat, Adamy said, "I hope when prices fall, housewives don't drive them right back up again by rushing out to buy 14 steaks."

The food chains' president predicted "a real break in the market in meat prices" within another week. Remember, he speaks from Washington. He is in daily touch with major chains. Whether and when the drop in prices he predicts comes, there is no assurance that it will be felt everywhere at once. But there is hope it will be nationwide.

Housewives' selective shopping will have done it, if it comes. The Cost of Living Council said that, desirable as the apparent sales trend is, the council has not been able to confirm it with facts and figures.

No one would argue that prices as yet have been affected in the consumer's favor. The higher price of meat has spurred plans for shoppers across the country to take part in a meat boycott April 1. It may well last longer. As yet, it is not a highly organized effort, but determined housewives may make it effective.

It is these housewives who have reduced meat buying perceptibly and who are causing the food chains and the packers to talk about a real break in prices.

Mafiosi on Run

Federal pressures from all sides — the Internal Revenue Service, Customs, the Post Office, Justice Department, the FBI — which form the Organized Crime Strike Forces in larger cities in the country, have the leaders of the Mafia on the run. In 18 major cities, strike forces are at work and their chiefs say they are the most effective force yet devised to combat organized crime.

The few remaining leaders of the 5,000-member syndicate are moving faster into legitimate business to escape the "heat." Convictions have jumped from 197 in 1967, when the first federal strike force was organized, to 1,000 last year. Currently, some 3,000 individuals with alleged syndicate ties are in various stages of prosecution.

John Reardon, head of the Chicago Crime Commission, where legal action has been brought against some 140 organized crime figures since 1969, said most of the syndicate leaders are already in prison or have passed on. The same is true all across the country.

But the Mafia is not through in this country, although Government has found the way to best combat it, using all federal agencies in strike forces that utilize financial records, legal documents and tax files.

The traditional gambling, small narcotics, and loan-shark operations are being left to underlings and minority groups who have come in to fill the void. Yet the big drug shipments and other very rich ventures are still handled by the masters. Their control is absolute in their territories and communities and they are extremely dangerous. They can't be phased out too soon, for the public's good.

THE WAY UP — Constance Stuart, who served Mrs. Nixon for three years as Press Secretary, has been rewarded with a new $30,095 post in the State Department. In April she becomes deputy director in the Office of the International Visitors Program, coordinating programs for official visitors to the United States. Another triumph for a press gal, and for women in this administration.

TRAGIC HARVEST — After reading of the Philadelphia teenager, allegedly high on drugs, charged with the murders of his parents and two younger brothers, can anyone doubt that the heaviest penalties and prompt trials should be the unfailing lot of the drug pusher? Thousands daily are being "converted" to drugs.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

HEW Officials Parrot Theme

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Top officials of the Health, Education and Welfare Department are preparing to go on the warpath against Congress. A blistering, eight-page speech has been whipped up for them to deliver whereever they can find a forum.

The suggested speech was written by Lewis Helm, picked for assistant secretary, but not yet confirmed. The harsh words he is putting into the mouths of HEW officials may come back to haunt him when he appears before the Senate for confirmation.

Helm would have HEW officials defend President Nixon's welfare cuts and attack Congress. "We are fortunate at this historic juncture," declares the prefabricated speech, "to have a President who is willing to face . . .reality head on.

"Only time will tell if Congress is willing to meet its responsibilities with equal courage. It has not to date . . . It is interesting that, amid all the rhetoic and criticism surrounding the President's budget proposals, few congressional voices are heard proclaiming the need for increased taxes. Interesting — but not at all unusual.

"That's because, year after year, Congress has ignored the fiscal facts of life . . . instead of straightforward calls for a tax increase, the Capitol Hill critics of President Nixon's budget say all the nation's fiscal problems could be met if only we would 'reorder our priorities.'"

The speech charges that "congressmen who court votes by passing legislation and increasing appropriations" have been joined by the "special interest groups" to fight the Nixon budget. Then the speech whacks away at the congressional budget review process, winding up: "Given this failure, it falls upon the President to make the hard decisions. President Nixon has done just that."

Footnote: Helm conceded that his speech was the basic text for HEW speechmakers, but said they were free to make changes to suit their individual circumstances.

Washington Whirl

RUSSIA VS. CHINA — As early as June 12, 1969, we were the first to report that the Kremlin was considering a swift strike at China's nuclear works. The idea was to eliminate China as a nuclear power before she could become a threat to Russia. No less than CIA director Richard Helms confirmed, in August 1969, the possiblity of a Soviet attack upon China. Lately, this spectre has been raised again in the press. Our CIA sources tell us, however, that China could now make a Soviet attack quite costly. The Chinese have deployed four dozen hydrogen-headed missiles, some of them in remote mountain silos. All are aimed at Soviet cities, which are now hostages against an attack. The Chinese have also trained legions of guerrillas, who would fan into Siberia and harass Soviet lines in case of warfare between the two countries.

Book Burning — the book burners are loose again in America in numbers not seen since the days of the late Sen. Joe McCarthy. The American Liberary Association tells us more than 100 attempts have been made to ban controversial books from schools and libraries across the country. Worst areas: Connecticut, Pennsylvania and Texas. Usually, the library vigilantes pretend they're fighting pornography. But the books on their boogey lists are often political rather than pornographic. In Ridgefield, Conn., for example, a pack of ultraconservatives have removed a dozen books from the local high school reading list. Included in this pornographic purge were such books as the biography of Malcolm X and an expose of Chicago Mayor Richard Daley.

Brass Ring — Today we award the brass ring, good for one free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, to Beatrice L. Garrett, the spirit behind the Foster Family Services in the Children's Bureau. More than anyone else, she is responsible for placing 315,000 neglected, unloved children in foster homes across the nation. She is quietly determined to double the number. Those who know her say she has dedicated herself to the cause of foster children with a rare combination of compassion and persistence. They describe her as a quiet but forceful person, with a remarkable ability to bring people together to work for vulnerable youngsters.

GI Story — The Pentagon, in its annual appeals for more funds, likes to cite the needs of the lowly GIs. But the Pentagon is paying out a whopping $13.5 billion for civilians, at a generous average annual wage of $13,000. This is charged in a study which will be released next week by the Americans for Democratic Action. The study will claim that one million civilians are working for the Defense Department and that the figure could be cut drastically.

Cover-Up — The Senate Small Business Committee has charged the Federal Trade Commission with covering up for nine of America's largest conglomerates. An FTC report on the merger activites of these corpoarte giants — among them ITT and Litton Industries — was laundered before it was submitted to the Senate. The committee has now demanded to see the laundered material.

"Here's Mud in Your Eye!"

Inside Report

CREEP's New Role

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Confronting new exposures in the poisonous Watergate scandal, the White House — using former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell as a secret intermediary — has ordered the Committee to Reelect the President (CRP) to open up a new counterattack.

At least six new legal and public affairs aides, possibly more, are being hired to give CRP — usually called Creep — added muscle to take over the main chore of what could be a decisive political battle between the administration and its legion of critics, including growing numbers of high-level Republican politicians, on the political espionage issue.

Thus, nothing has changed in the Nixon strategy in handling the Watergate scandal. Creep, financed by funds contributed to reelect Mr. Nixon, should have lost its reason for being last November. Mitchell quit as Creep's director immediately after the bugging and break-in at Democratic headquarters in the Watergate last June 17 and has had no formal political position since. But Creep and Mitchell are used by the White House to keep its hard-nosed reaction to the scandal rigid and unbending.

The threat of convicted Watergate bugger James W. McCord, Jr., to implicate higher-ups in the scandal has generated appeals from some highly-placed Republicans that the White House make a clean breast of the whole sordid business, no matter who is involved. To the contrary, Creep's orders from the White House, relayed by Mitchell, are just the opposite: counterattack.

"That doesn't mean Creep will counterattack the Senate's investigating committee" (headed by Democratic Sen. Sam Ervin, Jr., of North Carolina), an authoritative source told us. "It means Creep has been ordered to counterattack with its own facts."

This was precisely the weak line laid down by the White House at the Republican national convention last August, when the Democrats were unsuccessfuly trying to convert Watergate and political espionage from an outrageous escapade into a shocking issue of the presidential campaign.

At one closed-door Miami Beach meeting, leading Nixon fund-raisers and Republican politicians outside the administration begged Clark MacGregor, who succeeded Mitchell as Creep director, to "tell all" about Watergate.

Their rationale: Watergate could continue to drip "drops of acid" on the campaign, setting the stage for serious damage to the President's credibility in his second term.

Among those urging to "tell all" policy were big-time fund-raisers Max Fisher of Detroit and Thomas Pappas of Boston. They and others wanted to bring out all the facts and let the White House take the political heat.

MacGregor, presiding over that meeting, agreed with everything said. But the White House insisted it was not involved. Without involvement, presidential lieutenants asserted, there could be no clean breast.

The fact that this same White House-imposed silence of eight months ago is being dropped like a cloak over any possible involvement of White House aides in the new McCord-triggered crisis is clear from the order to Creep to recruit new legal and publicity aides for the impending battle.

Creep was supposed to have gone out of business April 1 — almost six months after the election it was set up to win. But presidential aides want the White House to publicly shoulder no part of the defense against the Ervin committee.

Nor does the White House want the Republican National Committee to play a defense role. Given the growing mood of anger against presidential aides — particularly chief of staff H. R. (Bob) Haldeman — by elected Republican politicians, the White House fears a transfer of the defender's role from Creep to the National Committee. In that case, backstage White House control might be lost.

Backstage control is total as of today, a fact that has led to intense hatred within middle-level staff ranks of Creep — particularly its finance section — for Haldeman. These middle-level operatives are convinced that finance chairman Maurice Stans has been made a Watergate scapegoat, slavishly obeying White House orders on disbursal of campaign funds without being told what the money was really being used for. According to these operatives, the White House wanted just such a scapegoat.

Now that McCord has promised to finger higher-ups, it was hoped both at middle levels of Creep and within political ranks of the Republican party that the masquerade would be ended. But that is not to be. With Creep now hiring lawyers and p.r. men, the White House has decided to brazen it out — a decision that Mr. Nixon may come to deeply regret.

Fly Me to the Moon

My wife and I swept through the front door. "Hello," Kathi said cheerfully. "Nice to have you back." "What's nice about it" I snarled. "Oh," she said softly. "Daddy sounds grouchy." I was hefting a valise. "Daddy is not grouchy," Daddy said. "Daddy is never grouchy, though God knows his children try hard enough to irritate Daddy."

Karen approached, arms outstretched. "Outta my way," I said. "Can't you see I'm carrying a suitcase?" I hobbled into the bedroom and closed the door softly. So softly that a spiderweb of cracks suddenly appeared around the frame. I sank on the bed. It was the only thing that didn't collapse.

What a day. What a damnable diem. First, the TV people didn't know when I should be at the studio. They had to get camera time. Then they had no script, which is sensible because I don't know how to read one. Then they made two good takes and found that someone forgot to turn the sound knob on. We made a third. They replayed it and I took a look at this Castiron kisser and threw up.

At 4 p.m., we were on the street. The plane wouldn't leave until 9. What do you do with five hours in New York? You stare at the gray skies and the gray sidewalks and the hordes of gray people walking with their heads down in the cold.

We hailed taxicabs. There were choking rivers of people and vehicles all churning slowly through some gigantic bowel. A driver stopped. "Thanks," I said. "Kennedy Airport." "Oh, no," the driver said. "Mister I have an ulcer and I wanna go home." Okay. Try another, and another. At 4:30, we had a cab. At 4:40, he was parked at the entrance to the Midtown Tunnel.

He could not move forward. Nor backward. We sat. His old radiator had a steam valve. Two cops were blowing whistles and waving their arms. Nobody moved. We slumped in the seat, speechless. There was a plane leaving at 6. It would be possible to make it if we walked.

The driver got through the tunnel. The meter was racking up dimes by the dozen. More stagnation. Some drivers lowered their windows so that other drivers could hear the cursing. Some just pointed a finger. Sweet lovely creatures.

We were at the airport at 5:45 p.m. It was still daylight. A wind blew the smoke away and we could see the smog. The airport clerk examined our tickets. He was the silent type. "You want to make the 6 o'clock plane?" he said. Yes, I said. If it wasn't too much of a bother. . .

But it was. Our tickets were from another airline. He would have to exchange them. There would be an additional charge of $58. Why? "Well, your return ticket is for a night flight." I pointed to the gathering darkness. "I know," he said, "but the 6 o'clock plane is not considered a night flight."

All right. I wrote the check. "Sorry," he said, "I need two cards of identification and a matching signature." I riffled through the wallet. Time was fleeting. Some pictures of grandchildren fell to the floor. Kelly picked them up. I gave him a Diners Club card and a driver's license. "Now sign the check," he said, "so that I can match the signature."

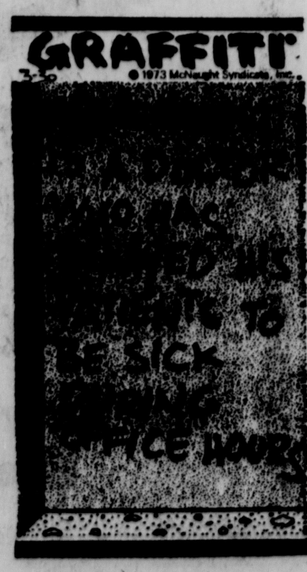

He did a whole lot of writing. Like the first chapter of "The Decline and Fall of Jim Bishop." He wrote and wrote. And wrote. Then he carefully tore two tickets loose. "Gate 6," he said softly. "You'd better hurry." Without asking, I knew that Gate 6 was nowhere nearby. It would be out in Jamaica Bay somewhere.

That's where it was. When we got in line to present our tickets, Kelly said her feet hurt. Also her head. I couldn't answer. I had a yard of tongue hanging out. "Made it," I gasped. "Just barely made it."

"Made what?" the man said. "Flight 7," I said. "Oh, that," he said. "it's not in yet." It's not what? Not in. You know — still up there in the wild blue yonder. All that racing for nothing. "Do you smoke?" he said. I nodded. "Then I have seats five A and B," he said. "You can smoke there." How late will the flight be? "They never tell us," he said. "Just go down that way."

We went. Two girls were examining hand luggage. We were frisked. I set the machine off. A man and I began a search together. It took time. The plane came in. As soon as it was cleaned—and I was — away we would go. The man found out what set the machine off. A metal comb.

Fifty minutes later, we got on the plane. "This is your captain," a cheerful voice said. "Get lost!" I shouted. A stewardess stared at me. When we got in the front door, Kathi said: "Hello. Nice to have you back." How much can a judge give you for belting a defenseless kid?

Woodstock Drug Forum... Five Panelists Give Views

By TIM SCHUSTER

WOODSTOCK — An intense interchange of information and ideas is currently taking place in Albany concerning Governor Rockefeller's proposed narcotics legislation, and the outcome will be an as yet unforeseen compromise, noted Assemblyman H. Clark Bell Thursday night.

While declining to give his opinion on any of the several proposals that have been aired on the controversial topic, Bell said that he had reservations on the constitutionality of "some aspects" of the governor's bill.

Five panelists gave input, and some gave opinions, on the bill at the Woodstock Elementary School on the subject. Besides Bell they were: Michael Wood, executive director, Ulster County Drug Commission; Richard Goldman, Kingston attorney; David Abel, member, Woodstock Narcotics Guidance Council; and Jeffrey Gordon, staff coordinator of Renaissance Project, Inc., Kingston. District Attorney Francis J. Vogt was unable to attend.

Bell gave as an example of his doubts on the constitutionality of Rockefeller's proposal the section that would prescribe different penalties for a convicted criminal under the influence of narcotics than one not under the influence. The bill would give life sentences with no parole or plea bargaining to the former.

In reviewing numerous "cross currents in the legislature," Bell noted that some "liberals" had joined conservatives in endorsing the governor's proposal, earning them the pejorative title in liberal circles of "Andrew Steiners," named after State Senator Andrew Stein of Brooklyn who advocates the death penalty for drug pushers.

And Bell said he believed that the "most difficult problem really is not heroin; it is amphetamines and other soft drugs," alluding to the volume impact on the populace and court system.

Wood said the Ulster County Drug Commission has endorsed "more punitive action" in dealing with drug-related crimes, adding, "I am terribly frustrated . . . Law enforcement alone is not any kind of an answer . . . There should always be treatment available."

Goldman echoed some sentiments expressed by the New York State Bar Association terming the governor's proposals pragmatically unworkable. "We all know that prohibition is not the answer," he said, citing the growing penalties in confluence with the growing drug problem.

He gave as an example that a man could go to jail for a lesser period of time for murdering his friend than selling him a quantity of hashish as indicative of the potential violence in the proposal.

And regarding the numerous statements of unconstitutionality of the proposal Goldman added he was sure Governor Rockefeller had good legal advice prior to making his proposals public, "but it made good copy . . . It is a political piece of legislation."

Gordon, a 20-year-old man who said he had been involved in the drug scene since he was 12, attributed most of the youthful involvement with drugs to emotional instability. He alluded to the bill's provision to give 16-19 year olds a life sentence with possibility of parole in 15 years as unrealistic.

Abel, a self-confessed former junkie of ten years, said, "This is not the answer. This is a witch hunt—a bone thrown to the people."

And he added, "Mr. Bell said the pusher is rotting the core of our society, but the core of our society is rotten and is driving people to drugs." He said he did not have the answer to the drug problem.

Bell answered a question from Moscowitz, panel moderator, on the cost of the governor's proposal in dollars by statting that there could be no valid cost estimate at this time because there is no real program developed.

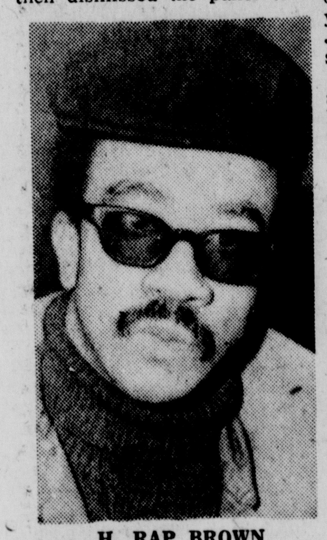

The assemblyman had copies of the proposed legislation distributed to members of the audience. The program was sponsored by the Woodstock Narcotics Guidance Council.

Brown Guilty on 13 Counts

NEW YORK (AP) — Black militant leader H. Rap Brown and three codefendants have been convicted of holding up a West Side Manhattan bar and assaulting a policeman.

A State Supreme Court jury, returning the verdict Thursday, said it was "hopelessly deadlocked" on other charges that the robbers attempted to murder police in an ensuing shootout.

Judge Arnold G. Fraiman then dismissed the panel of 11 men and one woman—including three blacks—which had deliberated over the case for 19 hours since midday Tuesday.

H. RAP BROWN

Brown's attorney, William M. Kunstler, immediately denounced the verdict as "a miscarriage of justice" and said it would be appealed. The prosecutor, Asst. Dist. Atty. Jack T. Litman, called it "a fair and very honest verdict."

Brown and the others face a maximum of 25 years in prison on the robbery charges and 15 years on the assault conviction. Judge Fraiman set May 3 for sentencing.

The four were charged with storming into the Red Carpet Lounge on West 85th Street, forcing 30 black patrons to lie on the floor, robbing them and emptying the bar's cash register.

As the gunmen fled the early morning holdup on Oct. 16, 1971, they clashed with police converging on the scene.

Brown, 29, who in 1967 succeeded Stokely Carmichael as head of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, stood impassively with his hands clasped in front of him as the verdict was read. He wore a knit brown and white skullcap, symbolic of his recent conversion to a black Muslim sect.

Convicted with him were three blacks from St. Louis—Samuel Petty, 24, Arthur Young, 26, and Levi Valentine, 25.

Brown still faces trial on inciting to riot charges stemming from disorders that broke out following a 1967 speech he gave in Cambridge, Md. He is currently appealing a five-year federal prison term for carrying a rifle aboard an airliner.

When the jury re-entered the courtroom Thursday afternoon, the forewoman, Dorothy Brown, told Judge Fraiman:

"We have reached a verdict on 13 of the 16 counts. On the remaining three counts, the jury is hopelessly deadlocked. And we honestly feel that no amount of further deliberations can change unalterable positions held over three days."

Fraiman remarked on the conscientiousness of the jury, but said the trial had stretched over 2 months and asked Mrs. Brown if she "honestly felt" further deliberations would be in vain.

"Yes, I do," the forewoman replied.

"Have you explored all the possibilities?" Fraiman asked.

"Yes, we have," Mrs. Brown said.

The judge then allowed the forewoman to read the verdicts on robbery and assault. The assault conviction involved Patrolman Gary Hunt, who was shot and seriously wounded as he rushed to the holdup scene.

Brown and Young also were found guilty on two counts each of weapons possession, while Petty and Valentine were acquitted on one count each.

The jury's deadlock apparently grew out of the requirement that intent must be established to sustain a charge of attempted murder. The panel had twice interrupted its deliberations to request that Judge Fraiman define the word "intent."

One of the jurors, Warren Kesselman, later said the panel initially was split 9-3 for conviction on the robbery charge.

"The holdouts wanted to know what a man of H. Rap Brown's stature was doing involved in a robbery," said Kesselman, a school librarian.

Attica Hearing... Four Give Testimony

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Having heard testimony about an influx of radical literature and possible outside support for militant groups in Attica and other New York State prisons, a congressional investigatory committee now plans to widen its probe of the "radicalization" of the nation's prisons.

The chairman of the House Internal Security Committee, U.S. Rep. Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., said at the end of a one-day hearing in Albany Thursday that the panel would next conduct a hearing in Washington, D.C., possibly followed by sessions in Columbus, Ohio, and California. He gave no dates.

One Attica inmate and three correction officials, including state Correctional Services Commissioner Russell G. Oswald, testified before the three committee members attending the hearing, which Ichord said was conductd primarily to look into the situation at Attica.

All discussed the types of pamphlets and other political literature being mailed into the prisons and the "revolutionary" groups that have sprung up behind prison walls. But none offered any firm evidence that outside organizations—such as the national Black Panthers or the Communist party—have provided direct guidance or assistance to their namesake groups among convicts.

The four hours of testimony were interrupted twice by demonstrators who unfurled banners reading, "Whitewash for Rockefeller's murder of Attica prisoners. Prisoners Solidarity Committee."

The first two protesters were hustled out of the small hearing room. The second outburst, by about 20 persons, occurred just as the last witness completed his testimony, so Ichord simply adjourned the hearing.

The four-day uprising at Attica prison in September 1971 cost the lives of 43 inmates and prison employes, most during the police assault, ordered by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, that regained the rebellious cellblock.

Oswald told the committee that he was "convinced, as are most of my colleagues in other states, that there is a corps of individuals, call them what we might—activists, radicals, militants, revolutionaries, regardless—who are bent on destruction."

"It is my belief that it was a corps such as this that conceived, and then set in motion, the tragic riot at Attica, using prison reform as the public focus."

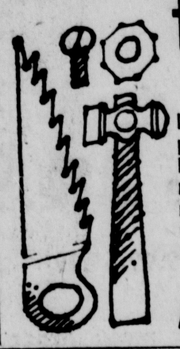

"There is a strong disinclination on the part of us in America from believing that they're doing this, trying to tear down our prisons," he said.

At a news conference during a break in the hearing, Ichord echoed Oswald's view: "I do feel very strongly at this point that revolutionary activities directed at prisons have played a part in prison disturbances."

The congressman said his committees' preliminary studies turned up some evidence of direct links between outside agitators and prison organizations, but he did not elaborate.

Both he and Oswald said, however, that militant inmates were only partially responsible for disturbances such as the Attica riot.

Gilman Assured By MTA

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Assurances that there will be public hearings on Phase I of the Stewart Airport master plan, have been received by Rep. Benjamin A. Gilman (R-26th Dist.) from William T. Ronan, chairman of the Metropolitan Transportation Authority.

Gilman said the MTA has promised to consider "responsible comment provided during those public hearings" when formulating decisions on Phase II of the Master Plan which will contain specifics for the future of Stewart. "One of my primary concerns," said Gilman, "is that Stewart be a compatible neighbor to the people who have to live with it. I believe the MTA's promise is a move in this direction."

Gilman welcomed the MTA's promise to brief public officials on the progress of plans for Stewart. "This sort of working arrangement with the MTA will allow me to fulfill my responsibilities to my constitutents in and around Stewart."

In a letter to Gilman, Ronan also claimed MTA was unable to honor Gilman's previous request that homeowners in the Stewart vicinity be given an extension rather than being forced to vacate on schedule, asserting it would be "unfair to property owners who have acted in timely fashion." Gilman described the denial as unfortunate in view of delays to Phase I of the Master Plan but welcomed the authority's assurance that future requests for delay from homeowners would be reviewed with "compassion and understanding" if moving presented any hardship.

Robison Proposes Drug Bill

WASHINGTON, D.C.

A drug penalty bill which would distinguish between the "big fish" and the "small fry" among hard narcotics dealers and would provide that the high echelon drug pusher be given a mandatory 20-year prison term with no possible early parole, has been proposed by Congressman Howard W. Robison (R-27th Dist.)

"I think many of us have a strong feeling that if penalties are to make a differene in deterring dope trafficking, there must be unyielding penalties which are clearly understood by potential violators," Robison said. His bill proposes stiffer penalties than those which now exist in federal law "for those who reap unconscionable profits by ruining countless lives and destroying others."

The new bill also specifies that a "judicial spotlighting" procedure be established, which would require that the Department of Justice release on a monthly basis all convictions of narcotics traffickers together with the length of prison sentence and the name of the judge who handed down the sentence. Robison said that this practice "will demonstrate a certainty of punishment to present and potential narcotics traffickers, as well as 'spotlight' judges who continually hand down short or suspended sentences to big-time peddlers of hard drugs"

Sen. Mason Gratified by Agreement

HOBART

State Senator Edwyn E. Mason (R-Hobart), sponsor of New York State's 1970 Endangered Species Act, has said he was "gratified" at the recent agreement between the U.S. and 79 other nations on the Endangered Animal Species Treaty, but warned that there are some gaps in the endangered species list contaned in the treaty.

The Mason Act list of species, products of the skins or bodies of which are prohibited from sale, includes the leopard, tiger, cheetah, alligator, crocodile, vicuna, red wolf, polar bear, mountain lion, jaguar, ocelot, margay, and various subspecies.

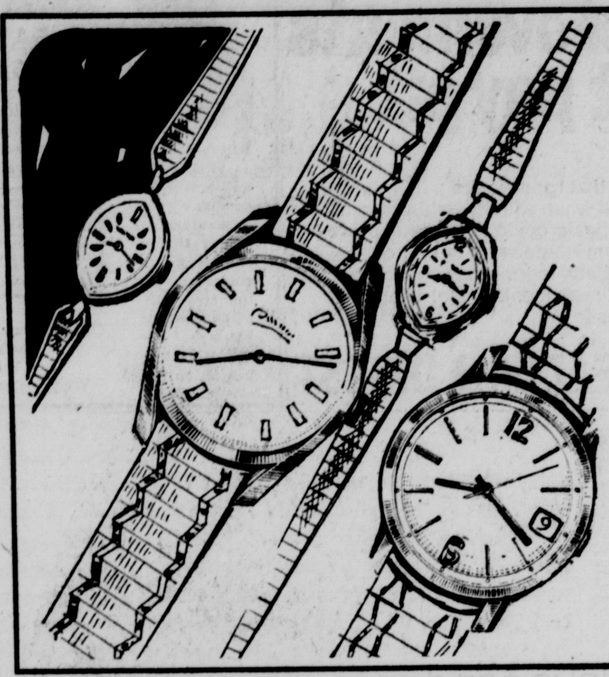

While congratulating the framers of the treaty's list, Mason said "There are, however, a few differences between the new International Agreement, which will be presented to the U.S. Senate for ratification as a treaty, and my 1970 list. The International Treaty does not list the margay or ocelot, or 11 species and subspecies of crocodilliian as being 'endangered'."

"I feel there's a serious danger in not prohibiting commerce in the ocelot, margay, and the stipulated crocodilian species," Mason continued. "All evidence indicated these species to be declining in 1970 because they were being harvested much faster than they could reproduce."

Area Library Slates Show

KINGSTON

The Kingston Area Library will broadcast a fund-raising show on local radio and television April 9 from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m.

Rita Jackaway, KAL president, said the mini-telethon will be broadcast live on Kingston Cablevision, Channel 2, and Radio Station WKNY, and will include many local entertainers and friends of the library. But volunteers are needed to work on the telethon and can volunteer by calling the library, she said.

Len Cane, executive director of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce, will serve as master of ceremonies for the three-hour show, and personalities from local radio stations have also volunteered their cooperation, Mrs. Jackaway said.

Volunteers will take calls with pledges for donations during the show and local students have also volunteered to canvass door-to-door during the program.

Michael Dvorocsik, a library trustee, is chairman of the radio-television telthon committee and Mrs. Ruth Poley, another trustee, heads this year's fund raising drive.

The fund raising show is scheduled concurrently with the Week.

SBA Sessions

Area residents with small businesses may speak with Edward S. Frese, a loan officer of the Small Business Administration, April 6. Frese will be in the General Sharpe Room of the Governor Clinton Hotel, Kingston from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Appointments are being scheduled by the Chamber of Commerce of Ulster County, and must be made by calling the Chamber office.

Cancel Italian Night

"Italian Night" scheduled for April 7 at the Walnut Grove on Field Court has been canceled. It will be rescheduled at a later date. The Rapid Hose banquet will be held in its place on April 7 at the Walnut Grove.

Agnew Watching, Waiting and Listening

VICE PRESIDENT AGNEW

WASHINGTON (AP) — His political profile is low these days, but Vice President Spiro T. Agnew is watching, waiting, and listening to advice on an all-but-certain quest for the 1976 Republican presidential nomination.

Agnew confidantes are convinced the vice president will go after that prize. They are not so sure about how. And Agnew isn't discussing that, even in confidence.

One Republican who has talked politics with him said the vice president simply listen to advice about strategy, timing, and likely rivals—prime among them John B. Connally.

There is no hint of an Agnew game plan.

The low profile clearly is by design. But there are politicians in Agnew's corner who are concerned that low profile could become no profile.

Obviously the season for open politicking is far off, nearly three years away.

But the matter of political timing is compounded by the Connally situation. The former Texas governor who headed Democrats for Nixon in 1972 is said to be on the verge of switching to the Republican party.

Assuming he does, it will be the functional equivalent of a declaration of 1976 presidential candidacy, focusing attention not only on Connally, but on the response of Agnew.

Furthermore, President Nixon has seldom missed an opportunity to speak warmly of Connally and his abilities, to the point of remarking to a White House caller earlier this year that the Texan is likely to be the next GOP nominee.

But the vice president's partisans are sensitive to the fact there has been no comparable buildup for their man.

Agnew, it was understood has not raised the Connally question with Nixon. One source said the President and vice president do not have the kind of relationship that could lead to any such conversation.

A similar situation prevailed in 1972, amid speculation that Nixon might drop Agnew and switch to Connally as his vice presidential choice. Agnew simply waited that out, and wound up with renomination.

But he is being told now that watchful waiting will not work in advance of 1976.

There are other problems.

Connally is only one prospect in what is likely to be a crowded GOP field. And, if Agnew's would-be strategists don't want him exposed to the perils that await an early front-runner, they don't want anybody else to become the clear front-runner, either.

In the White House personnel cutback, Agnew's staff is down from 39 to 30. Two top political aides have moved to other jobs, although they presumably remain available for counsel now—and help when the time comes.

While broadening his conservative Republican constituency would appear to be a logical Agnew goal in advance of 1976, there are signs of some defections in his basic following.

Lee Edwards, who publishes the conservative newsletter "The Right Report," said he has found significant interest in a Connally candidacy among some conservative GOP leaders.

The Clarence Daniels came home to a '73 Ford LTD Brougham because behind the beautiful looking outside, is a beautiful driving inside.

Can a city family of four find happiness on the highway in a two-door car?

The Clarence Daniels of Newark did. Their 1973 LTD Brougham is a whole lot of car, inside and out, front and back, on crowded city streets and on the open road. And it looks it.

"My biggest problem," says Mr. Daniels, "is getting my friends to believe it's a Ford. 'Why'd you go and get a big Lincoln or Thunderbird?' they ask me. Until they get up close."

It's the kind of a problem a car owner doesn't mind having. Especially when the car handles like a quiet dream in city traffic as well as on the highway. And offers real stretch-out legroom for driver and passengers.

As the Daniels' daughter, Carol, a teacher and six feet of strong-minded woman, puts it: "A lot of big cars are awkward, but the Brougham handles very well. And I just kind of dig the luxury."

Motor Trend Magazine selected the 1973 Ford LTD Brougham as their Full-Size Sedan of the Year. So did the Clarence Daniels. Check it out at your local dealer. Come on home.

A Free Press Protects Your Free Speech...
But We Can't Protect You With Our Reporters In Jail!

Judges are jailing reporters with increasing frequency, because they refuse to reveal news sources. The result can only be a drying up of these sources of information and impede your right to know what's happening in your government.

Your free speech depends on a free press.

The First Amendment to our Constitution, which is your ultimate protection against your government's attempt to suppress information, says in part, "Congress shall pass no law abridging the freedom of speech or of the press."

From this you see that free speech and a free press are guaranteed the people generally — not to any individual or business. Consequently, when our freedom of the press is restricted, your free speech is restricted too. This also applies to everyone's right to know what's being offered in the Marketplace. The right of choice in all goods and services keeps the system of competition working for everyone's progress.

Bond Issue . . . Third Try

HIGHLAND — The Highland Central School District will, for the third time, place a $2.3 million bond issue before the district's voters, in voting to be held Saturday at the Highland Middle School from noon to 9 p.m.

Earmarked for a renovation of the Middle School is $684,700 of the $2.3 million. The rest of the money, $1,615,300, is for the construction of an addition to the Middle School.

The renovation and addition is needed to relieve overcrowding in the school district, according to the board of education.

Thruway Arrests . . . 'Substance Is Heroin'

KINGSTON — Laboratory ananlysis of a substance found in the trunk of a car in which four Detroit residents were arrested Wednesday on the Thruway has identified the powder as "definitely heroin," Hurley State Police said today.

BCI Senior Investigator Michael Lisman also said that the machine gun found in the car had been modified for full automatic firing whenever the trigger is pulled. The weapon, fired from the shoulder, is manufactured with a device that permits either single shot or fully automatic operation but the weapon seized Wednesday had had a part in the firing mechanism filed away that prevented single-shot operation, Lisman said.

Melvin Lemmons, 32, the driver, Marcella Murphy, 16, Raymond Alexander Hardrick, 30, and Samuel Allen, 32, all of Detroit, were apprehended by a Thruway radar detail after allegedly going 66 miles per hour in a 40-mile-per-hour work zone near mile post 94 in the Town of Ulster.

After the four were ordered from the car police allegedly found two handguns, a .38-caliber revolver and a .45-caliber automatic pistol, in the woman's handbag. A search of the vehicle at State police headquarters later allegedly turned up the heroin and the machine gun in the trunk of the car.

Lisman said that the machine gun is beleived to have been stolen from an interstate shipment of federal firearms, and that the FBI office in Detroit had been furnished the serial number for a check.

Hardrick, also known as Raymond Hampton, is wanted in Detroit on a charge of conspiracy to distribute drugs and is on parole until December, 1974, on other charges, police said.

Lemmons is also wanted by Detroit police on a weapons violation charge. Neither Allen nor Miss Murphy are wanted by authorities in Michigan as far as local police know but their fingerprints are being checked with the National Crime Information Center to determine if they might be wanted in other places.

Detroit police have been asked to forward fingerprints of Francine Murphy, tentatively identified as Marcella's sister, to determine if the woman arrested here gave her true identity or if she possibly might be Francine, who was released recently on $10,000 bail after being charged with the same drug distribution conspiracy charges as Hardrick. The prints are expected here today, Lisman said.

More than a pound of heroin was found in the car by police, resulting in a charge against the four of first degree drug possession, a Class A felony punishable by up to life imprisonment, Lisman said.

The four suspects, who have retained Kingston attorney Aaron E. Klein to represent them, are being held without bail in the Ulster County Jail and are scheduled to appear before Town of Hurley Justice C. H. DuMond on April 4.

City Junkyard Amendment, No Opposition at Hearing

KINGSTON — The Laws and Rules Committee of the Common Council held a public hearing Thursday night on an amendment to the zoning law which would prohibit any new junk yards or car crushers in the city.

There was no opposition to the proposal, according to Alderman Donald E. Quick (D-Sixth Ward), chairman of the committee. The new law would not affect any junkyards or car crushing businesses currently in operation in the city, Quick said.

Quick's committee will bring the legislation to a full Common Council vote when the aldermen meet Tuesday night.

Quick's committee will receive two other requests for study on Tuesday night, one from the urban renewal agency asking for a public hearing on a request from Dr. George Wootan to construct a medical building on Green Street near North Front Street in the Uptown Project, the other from Dr. Yulin Yao for a rezoning of 20-22, 24-28 Mary's Avenue for a medical office. The property is currently zoned residential.

On the subject of public hearings on zoning requests, Alderman Edmond Roux (R-Ninth Ward) has submitted a resolution to the Council asking for an amendment to the zoning law that would require persons requesting a zoning change to be present at its public hearing or have the request automatically denied. The Zoning Board of Appeals has such a ruling on its requests for variances.

Wounded Knee Negotiations

PINE RIDGE, S.D. (UPI) — A government negotiator met with a leader of militant Indians entrenched at Wounded Knee Thursday, and government officials were optimistic the first face-to-face talks this week were "a step in the right direction."

However, shortly before the talks Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., said the collapse of a mutiny among militants inside Wounded Knee "greatly decreased" prospects for a negotiated settlement.

Abourezk charged that leaders of the American Indian Movement (AIM) put down at gunpoint some 100 Oglala Sioux inside the besieged hamlet who were willing to consider an end to the month-long occupation. But Ramon Roubideaux, an attorney for AIM forces, denied there was dissension among the occupiers.

Assistant Attorney General Kent Frizzell announced that Dennis Ickes, a civil rights official with the Justice Department, had met with AIM leaders at Wounded Knee. He said, "It's a step in the right direction."

The meeting was arranged via short-wave radio with Dennis Banks, one of the two key leaders of AIM. Frizzell said the meeting was held at "Tepee Chapel" in Wounded Knee. However, details of the meeting were not revealed.

Sheriff Clyde Rayhill of neighboring Bennet County said Thursday a man who identified himself as Marlon Brando called Wednesday night and asked for an escort into Wounded Knee, but Rayhill said he turned the caller down.

American Diplomats Flocking to Moscow

By RAY MOSELEY

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union has seen nothing like it.

Almost every plane that arrives from New York this year brings a new contingent of Yankee traders, their briefcases bulging, their hearts intent on exchange capitalist machinery, equipment and raw materials for Communist hard cash or commodities.

They include representatives of small firms as well as such giants as General Motors, General Electric, Alcoa, Esso, Mobiloil, First National City Bank of New York, Chase Manhattan, Pullman Inc., John Deere, Caterpillar and International Harvester.

Since the signing of the Soviet-American trade agreement in Washington last October, the word seems to be out in the American business community that Soviet Russia is the place to do business these days.

The American Embassy, which in the quiet days of yore dealt with 50 to 60 visiting businessmen a month, found 75 of them on its doorstep in one week alone recently. One Soviet publication estimated that 2,500 U.S. businessmen came here in the first 10 months of 1972.

For their part, the Soviet are displaying a new-found eagerness to do business with Americans.

Within the past seven months, three American firms have been allowed to open offices here — Occidental Petroleum, Pullman and Chase Manhattan —and others may follow.

"We find that we can call up Soviet ministers and deputy ministers now and talk to them directly," one U.S. Embassy economic officer said recently. "You still can't do that in Western Europe."

U.S. trade with the Soviet Union reached a record $642.1 million last year, and is expected to be well above $1 billion in 1973.

Still there are some experts who question whether all the activity by American business is entirely justified.

"There is a limit on the amount of trade the Soviets can do with the United States," a Western diplomat said. "The U.S. has a six-to-one edge in exports, and so far the Soviets are financing this trade through limited gold sales and an increasingly substantial amount of their hard currency reserves.

"But they cannot do this indefinitely, or rely on their favorable trade balance with other hard currency countries to make up the difference."

Diplomats also note that a bad harvest last year has adversely affected Soviet trade prospects this year. The Soviets had to buy about $1.8 billion worth of grain abroad, thus cutting deeply into funds that might have been available for other purchases.

American businessmen, however, almost invariably sound a more optimistic note than the diplomats.

"I very definitely see prospects for increasing trade with the Soviets," said Robert B. Costello, the first resident director in the Soviet Union for Pullman Inc.

"No one seems to know exactly what they have in foreign exchange and gold. It might be more than has been suspected. Besides, we are trying our best to make this a two-way street, offering to buy what we can from them."

Dr. Thomas O. Paine, a General Electric vice president who recently signed a trade protocol with the Soviets, spoke in similar terms.

"The thing that has impressed us most is the very large scale of opportunity here," he said. "We think many of the estimates of the potential balance of trade with the Soviet Union probably have been understated."

French Foreign Legion . . . More Rebuilding Than Fighting

OUHEA, French Somaliland (UPI) — The Foreign Legion, the legendary last resort of criminals, star-crossed lovers and wartime losers, is trading in its rifles for plumblines and roadbuilding equipment.

The Legion, founded by King Louis Philippe in 1831 to help control France's African colonies, long ago marched out of its Sahara desert fortresses—romanticized in such movies as "Beau Geste" —and abandoned its baggy red trousers and blue coats.

With France's once great African and Asian empire shrunk to a few tiny enclaves the legion soon may have no useful task to fulfill and nowhere to call home.

One-tenth of its strength, the 1,000 men of the 13th demi-brigade, are stationed in this last French colony in Africa. Its role here is to show the tricolor and maintain order among the estimated 200,000 Afars and Issas, nomadic tribesmen in the area.

There have been periodic secessionist movements in the past, but the 8,800 square mile territory currently is quiet. The Legion's enemies are the flies and the searing 120 degree heat.

"We're doing a lot more roadbuilding than fighting here," one Legionnaire said in the guardpost at this forward base. "France must be lovely right now. I'll be out of this hole in a few months."

"Most Legionnaires have bigger bellies than I do," a Djibouti restaurant owner complained. "All they do is eat and drink. They don't fight."

Few Frenchmen here—soldiers or civilians—agree with the restaurant owner on the Legion's fighting abilities. For them, the Legionnaires still are elite shock troops—cast in the same mold as the men who helped conquer Algeria, fought in almost continuous places from Africa to the Crimea to Indochina (and incidentally Mexico in support of Emperor Maximilian), and suffered 31,000 casualties among 45,000 troops in World War I.

Officers say the Legion has more volunteers than it needs. Any man between the ages of 18 and 40 can join.

A large number of Legionnaires are Germans—an estimated 40 per cent here.

Officers are exclusively French, and their numbers reportedly are increasing in the ranks, too, where a Frenchman can get a higher enlistment bonus than if he joins the regular army. In the ranks pay is about $200 a month.

are allowed to tak etheir wives to duty posts such as this one; enlisted men are not.

Officially the Legion but officers said few questions are asked about the past and once enlisted, a man can change his name.

The insignia of the Legion is a grenade ing flames and its motto: "Honor and aithfulness."

But for a mercenary army whose ranks have swollen after every European war with ated forces, the Legion's unofficial motto is more relevant: "Legio Patria Nostra—The Legion is Our Fatherland."

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

Rosendale Women Report Upcoming Events

Sewing contest, District county meeting and scholarship award were discussed at the March meeting of the Rosendale Women's Club. The meeting took place at the home of Mrs. Bernice Rabuffo with Lottie Burns, president, president.

Mrs. Roger Beaulieu, sewing contest chairman, reported that Mary McEvoy of Tillson was winner in the contest on a local level. Mrs. Beaulieu and Mrs. James Merck will accompany Miss McEvoy to Chatham for judging on the district level. The contest is sponsored by the New York Federation of Women's Clubs.

The annual District County Meeting will take place at Liguori's in Rosendale Wednesday, Apr. 25, at 11:30 a.m. Reservations must be made by April 15. Delegates from the club will be Lottie Burns, Mrs. Margaret Purcell, district leader, and Mrs. Irvin Smith.

The annual Scholarship Award presented by the Club was increased to $150. This award is open to any senior in the Town of Rosendale who is planning to attend college.

Mrs. Edward Huben was named honorary chairman of the beautification of the community project. Mrs. Peter Mathews and Mrs. Arthur Mulligan attended the March Village Board meeting to request funds for the program. The request is under consideration by the Board of Trustees. Mrs. Merck will contact schools, grades one to four, for posters. Awards will be given for the best works submitted.

Congratulations were extended to Lottie Burns who recently received the Layman's Award from Kiwanis Club of Kingston for her many years of service to church and community.

Mrs. James Merck will participate in the New York Federation of Women's Club Adult Art Contest at the State Federation in Saratoga April 30-May 2.

Hostesses at the meeting were Mrs. Bernice Rabuffo, Mrs. Veronon Freese and Mrs. Mary Fisher.

Speaker for Democratic Women's Luncheon

R. Peter Straus, president of The Straus Communications, Inc., will be the guest speaker at the April 9th luncheon of the 22nd Annual Political Conference of the Women's Division of the Democratic State Committee at the Hyatt House, Albany. Announcement was made by Mae Gurevich, State Committee Vice-Chairman and National Committeewoman.

Mr. Straus is prominent in both broadcasting and public affairs. With WMCA, Straus Broadcasting's New York City station, from 1961 to 1966, he led the court fight for reapportionment of the New York State legislature. It was in the suit brought by Mr. Straus and WMCA that the U.S. Surpeme Court in 1964 applied its historic "one man—one vote" decision to New York State.

WMCA: Call for Action, the drive for enforcement of New York City's housing codes, has utilized hundreds of on-the-air editorials by Mr. Straus. His other public action campaigns have included a fight against racial discrimination in real estate, a drive to boost New York's voter registration, and the campign to abolish the death penalty in the state.

Mr. Straus has also been involved in Democratic Party activities. In 1964 he served as Chairman of the New York State Democratic Campaign Committee, and he has been a delegate to Democratic National Conventions.

The luncheon at which Mr. Straus will speak will follow a morning program featuring talks by State Comptroller Arthur Levitt, Senate Minority Leader Joseph Zaretzki and Assembly Minority Leader Stanley Steingut. The conference, which has as its theme, "Government — Its Changing Role in New York State," will open on the afternoon of April 8th with a keynote address by Democratic State Chairman Joseph F. Crangle.

School Nurse Teachers Dinner Meeting

Mrs. S. Robert Kelder Jr., president of the Ulster County Homemakers Service, Inc., was guest speaker at a recent dinner meeting of Ulster County School Nurse Teachers at Holiday Inn.

The Homemaker Service was founded by the Junior League of Kingston in 1970 to meet the needs of families in crisis situations. Homemakers are trained by professional personnel to perform household duties, in the form of light housekeeping, caring for the elederly and children, preparing meals and other chores.

A film, depicting a day in the life of a homemaker, was show. The School Nurse is in a position to be aware of families who may be in need of this service. Anyone interested should contact Mrs. John Plass, executive director of the program, at the YWCA, 209 Clinton Avenue.

After the presentation, a regular meeting took place. A bill, currently in the legislature, concerning School Nurse Teachers, was discussed. All members were urged to contact their local representatives to enlist support of the bill.

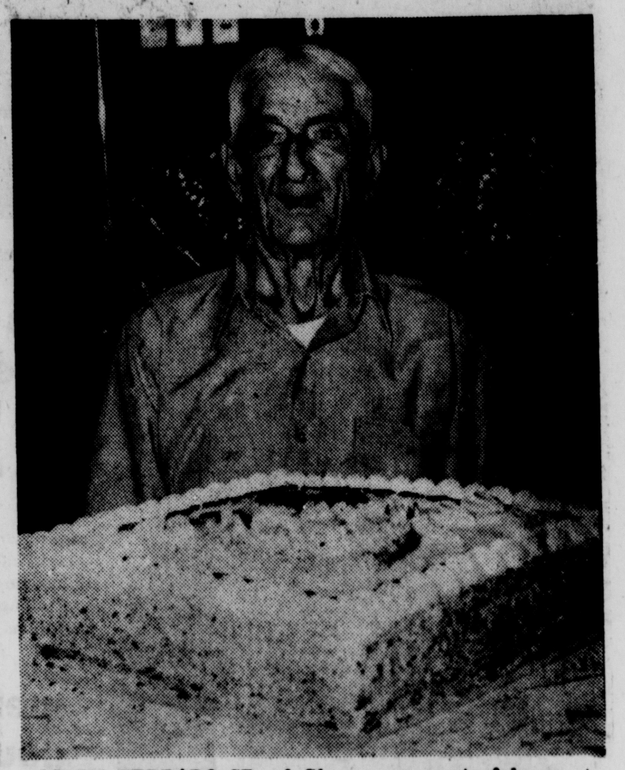

Tiny Tips

Sweater Stuff

Necklaces, pendants and chains all have added interest since the popularity of sweater sets. You can change styles with moods going from colorful toy beads to victorian type lockets with an heirloom look.

De-Electrifying

A cream rinse helps eliminate fly away hair and electricity that causes hair to cling to sweaters in cold weather. Choose one designed for your specific hair type.

JOSEPH FERRARO SR. of Glasco was guest of honor at at party given by his sons, Vincenzo, Louis, Arthur and Joseph Jr., Saturday, March 17, at St. Joseph's parish hall in Glasco. The party was in honor of his 90th birthday. Mr. Ferraro was born in Italy and came to this country as a young boy. His wife, the late Maria Martino Ferraro, also came to this country from Italy. They had celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary on Feb. 5, 1966. Mr. Ferraro was employed by Washburn Brothers Brickyard until his retirement in 1948. He is also the father of Charles Ferraro, Mrs. Lily Barilla, Mrs. Catherine Nardi, Mrs. Alvay Cafaldo, Mrs. Marge Secreto and Mrs. Ida Scorzo. Approximately 75 relatives and friends attended.

Put Yourself in Her Place, Then Decide

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A group of couples have been attending a Saturday night dance together for a number of years. We are all good friends. Recently one couple divorced and the lady continued to attend these dances as a 'single."

For a while the grcup accepted her to help her over her adjustment period. The gentlemen in the crowd continued to dance with her as they always had, but this created a problem, for one of the wives was always left to sit out the dance while her husband danced with 'Single."

Abby, don't you think "Single" should realize that she is creating a problem and should drop out of the group until she obtains a partner? How can we end the dilemma, but still be friends?

"SITTING DUCK"

DEAR SITTING: Put yourself in 'single's" place and be a little more charitable. The life of a single is lonely and difficlut and those Saturday night dances are probably her only opportunity to socializ.e

Ask your husbands if they can't come up with a single man who could be her partner on those Saturday nights. Singles need all the help they can get.

DEAR ABBY: I have a wonderful hairdresser with whom I have a standing apointment once a week. I am a busy woman and like to get in and out of the beauty parlor as quickly as possible. My problem is that my hairdresser is a chatty person, and he talks with his hands! He just about drives me crazy, wasting all that time gesturing. How can I tell him to WORK WITH HIS HANDS, NOT TALK? No names, please. I need him more than he needs me.

IN A HURRY

DEAR IN: It's time you did a little talking. With the VOICE, lady.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I have never seen in your column. I am. a 38-year-old woman who was married for 10 years and bore two children. My husband died four years ago. Thank God I was equipped to take a high-paying position in order to support myself and children.

I am reasonably attractive, but am not the type who goes to bars alone looking for male companionship. I've dated some, but not much, because as soon as a man learns that I am not so sex-starved that he can head for a motel on the second date, he looks for hungrier women.

My problem: Because I am not actively looking for a man, and have refused to be rushed into bed by all the so-called eligible bachelors who've dated me, the rumor is rampant that I prefer women. (This was told to me by two friends, one woman and the other a man.)

Of course, it's a lie, but I have become so self-conscious about it that I don't dare call single woman and suggest we have dinner or go to a movie together. The fact that I was married and bore two children doesn't seem to matter. The rumor, I'm told, persists.

Now, you're supposed to be a wise woman, Abby. How does an innocent victim deny such a rumor?

PERSECUTED

DEAR PERSECUTED: The rumor may not be as rampant as you were led to believe it is. I would question the motives of one who would bring such a rumor to my attention. (Could a male be attempting to persuade you to 'prove" the rumor false?) or could a woman, who herself preferred women, be "testing" you? Don't refrain from socializing with women. Forget the rumor, and continue to behave as you always have.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

(Hear Dear Abby Mon. thru Sat. at 9:07 a.m. WKNY-1490)

Chamber Music Program Sunday

A Chamber Music Program will be presented by a wind Quintet composed of members of the music faculty of the Hyde Park Central School District on Sunday, Apr. 1, at 3 p.m. in the Vanderbilt Mansion, Hyde Park.

The Quintet recently took part in a series of programs presented during music week at the school district, including a special performance at the Hyde Park Free Library. Members include David DeWitt, flute; Conrad Morgan, oboe; Robert Yaeger, clarinet; Gerald Conklin, French horn; and Shirley Yaeger, trombone.

This program is part of the series of concerts presented by the Volunteers in Parks during the past winter. The goal of this and other events at the Vanderbilt Mansion is to bring life to the historic house.

Women's Crafts Fair Scheduled

A Women's Crafts Fair is being held this Saturday at the Women's Center, 96 Market Street, Poughkeepsie, opposite Adriance Library. The hours of the Fair are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Proceeds of the Crafts Fair are to benefit the Children's Center, a low-cost day care facility sponsored by the Women's Center and the Unitarian Fellowship. It is hoped that the services of the Children's Center can be expanded next year to cover full time day care and to accept more children into the Center.

The Women's Crafts Fair will feature hand-crafted articles made by women, baked goods, plants. Items will include sweaters, candles, plant hangers. A crocheted afghan will be awarded also.

Any women wishing to donate articles or art for sale at the Fair should contact the Women's Center or bring the item to the Center before Saturday. The public is invited to attend.

Voters Are Urged to Make Contact

SHAWANGUNK

Town of Shawangunk voters are being urged to contact their Democratic committeemen and make known their views on any issues concerning the town and county which they feel are important and to make known their ecommendations for candidates in the November election.

Shawangunk Democratic Committee Chairman Marc B. Fried said today that he "has no doubt that there are many persons in the Town of Shawangunk who are far better qualified to hold public office than are those who hold these offices now. I am not talking about enrolled Democrats only," he said, "for this committee would consider endorsing a person of any party affiliation if we are impressed by his or her qualifications and abilities."

Fried said that the Democratic committees of Shawnagunk and Wawarsing will be meeting in the near future to decide on candidates for the County Legislature. Under the new county reapportionment plan, the two towns have been coupled into a single district.

4-H Club Members At Banquet

NEW PALTZ

Members of the Ulster County 4-H Beef, Dairy, Tractor and Dog Obedience clubs gathered at the New Paltz Middle School recently for the annual agricultural banquet sponsored by Agway of Accord, New Paltz, and Pine Bush.

Speakers on the various subjects included B. Scribner, beef; Jonathan DeWitt, dog obedience; Paul Strombeck, dairy; and Joseph Hasbrouck, tractor. Ron Van Aken, Eastern Regional 4-H tractor champion, showed slides of his recent trip to Richmond, Va.

Henry Neuberger, manager of Gordon's John Deere in Wallkill, discussed the new federal safety and health regulations for agriculture and related industries. Davenport's Implements of High Falls, Haviland Ford of Highland, and Gordun's John Deere of Wallkill were the tractor sponsors who received certificates of appreciation.

Receiving certificates as tractor leaders were Joseph Hasbrouck, Walter Elmore, Terry Cosh, Todd Widmark, and Ron Van Aken. At the conclusion of the banquet there was a drawing for door prizes and a showing of a wild life film.

Daley to Receive KNG Page One Labor Award

KINGSTON — Theodore G. (Ted) Daley, secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local Union No. 455 of Yonkers, has been named winner of the 1973 Kingston Newspaper Guild's Page One Award in Labor.

Daley will be honored along with winners in various other fields of endeavor at the Guild's annual Page One Ball on Saturday, May 19, at the Holiday Inn, Guild President Charles J. Tiano announced.

The 43-year-old Daley became the youngest principal officer in the history of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters when he ousted the corrupt leadership of his local union after 11 bruising months and a series of legal skirmishes on Nov. 12, 1955.

Since then, under Daley's dynamic leadership, Local 445 has grown to be one of the largest and strongest Local Unions in the entire International Brotherhood of Teamsters. Daley has grown with the union in strength, stature and wisdom and is proudest to be known simply as "a teamster."

One of eight children, Daley was born in Newburgh 43 years ago and educated in the Newburgh public schools. He drove his first truck at the age of 17 in New York Trap Rock's quarry at Clinton Point in Dutchess County. It was at Dorn's Transportation in Pelham Manor, that Daley first became interested in the labor movement, serving as shop steward and a member of wage scale negotiating committees.

Daley's stewardship in Local 445 has earned him national recognition as one of the most progressive leaders in the labor ranks of the country. In addition to being a skillful and relentless contract negotiator, Daley pioneered in dental and optical coverage plans for Local 445 in addition to the medical and major medical benefits.

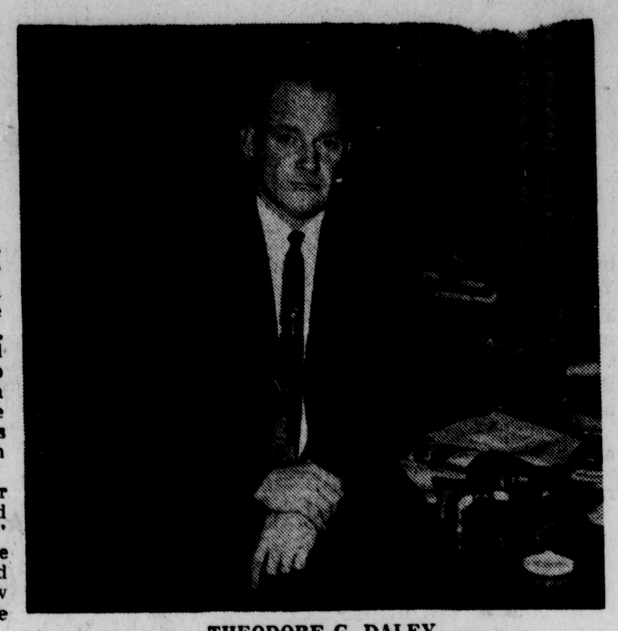

Another great pioneering step was taken two years ago when the New York State Commissioner of Health Dr. Hollis Ingraham spoke at the inauguration of Local 445's Mobil Health Van. This complete multiphasic health screening van brought the benefits of diagnostic health care to the men and women of Local 445 by travelling throughout the union's seven-county jurisdiction. In a year and a half of its operation the Medical Van has given more than 5,000 examinations to 445 members and their wives.

Working closely with the actuarial and insurance consultants to the Pension and Welfare Funds, of which he is chairman, Daley is continually innovating in the area of coverage and protection for the membership of 445. The pension and welfare programs of the local were totally corrupt when Daley ousted the old leadership in 1955.

Daley and his wife, Margaret, will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary in June. The Daleys have two children, daughter Karen who recently married Robert Barnhart of Kingston and Ted Jr., a student at Mt. Saint Mary College in Newburgh.

In addition to his wide ranging duties as a labor executive, Daley has been a steady champion of the cause of the young State of Israel. In June his interest in Israel will be culminated with a trip to Israel where he will be a guest of the government of the State of Israel, a trip he has been looking forward to with great anticipation.

"The Guild is proud to honor Ted Daley, a selfless, dedicated leader in the labor movement," said Guild president Tiano. "He has impeccable credentials and those associated with him know that he bargains for his people and not himself."

CITY OF KINGSTON, N.Y., FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 30, 1973 SEVENTEEN

County Democrats Meet Tonight

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON — Ulster County Democratic Committee will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the Municipal Auditorium on Broadway in Kingston to nominate a slate of city and county candidates for election in November, according to County Democratic Chairman James T. McCardle. The meeting was previously scheduled for the Court House.

It is expected that the committee will follow the lead of the City Committee and endorse the top of the city ticket which includes Mayor Francis R. Koenig, Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo and City Judge Hubert Richter.

Although the designation has not been confirmed as yet, it is also reported that Kingston real estate broker and insurance man, Joseph F. Saccoman, is "considering" running for county treasurer.

The City Democratic Committee failed Wednesday night to nominate a candidate for either Family Court Judge or Coroner and it is not known at this time whether the county committee will field candidates for the two posts.

The County Committee is expected to go along with the City Committee's Wednesday nominations of six candidates for the Legislature and 11 candidates for alderman of the Common Council.

The four incumbent Democratic city legislators are expected to get the nod including: Minority Leader Dr. Gerald P. Gorman, James Carroll, Lawrence Kithcart and James Gilpatric. In addition they anticipate naming two new nominees, Eugene Perry, an employe of the city who ran unsuccessfully against Harry C. Kapreilian (R-City) last November and John Dwyer, who is employed by Marist College, Poughkeepsie.

The Democratic County Committee will also field candidates for the County Legislature from outside the city. They are expected to include the following incumbents: Richard Thornton; Dist. 1; Louis M. Klein and Lewis C. Kirschner, Dist. 6; George Barthel and Alex J. Nirenberg, Dist. 7.

In addition, the Democrats are expected to field a number of candidates to oppose incumbent Republican legislators. Among them it is thought, will be Maurice Hinchey Jr. of Saugerties as a nominee in Dist. 1, (Saugerties). The Saugerties District is the only one in the county where there is an apparent abundance of Democratic candidates for the three posts now held by Republicans.

McCardle said that a number of town chairmen in the various legislative districts in the county are still in the process of making selections of candidates for the Legislature and that they will be announced tonight.

Nominations for candidates for the Common Council will also follow those made at the City Convention and will include: Incumbents John Coffey, First Ward; Joseph R. McGrane, Second Ward; Clarence Stoutenberg, Fourth Ward; John E. Finch, Fifth Ward; Donald E. Quick, Sixth Ward; Emillio Primo, Eighth Ward; Clifford Sinsabaugh, Ninth Ward; Peter Mancuso, 11th Ward. The party is also expected to nominate Paul Mills for the Third Ward; James Howard, Seventh Ward and Daniel Smith, Tenth Ward.

Town of Marbletown . . . Site of Special Census

MARBLETOWN — Town of Marbletown has been chosen as one of 100 towns in the United States where the United States Department of Commerce will conduct a special census this year.

The census is to be taken between April 15 and 20 with the Department of Commerce employing eight enumerators from the town.

Supervisor Kenneth Smith said that he understands that the Department selected Marbletown in its effort to get a good cross-section representation of communities across the nation. He also pointed out that although localities receive per capita aid based on the federal census, Marbletown's aid will not change from the amount it now receives based on the 1970 census regardless of what the 1973 census figures indicate.

Smith said he was told that the reason for the special census is to update information taken in the 1970 census. The Department of Commerce will pay the numerators 20 cents per name or $2.50 an hour. Enumerators must have their own car.

Anyone interested in becoming an enumerator may pick up an application at the Marbletown Town Hall daily between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

State Approves UCCC Plan

STONE RIDGE — The Central Administration of the State University of New York has approved a new one-year Service Technician program for Ulster County Community College, Dr. Geroge B. Erbstein, president, announced today.

The college plans to start this new program in September. It will train students for appliance repair work and heating and air conditioning maintenance and repair.

Previously the program was approved by the Engineering Technologies Advisory Council, College Faculty and the Board of Trustees. It also was endorsed by a group of community businessmen who felt it would be an important program at the college and cited the need for more trained servicemen. This need is expected to continue for many years.

Earning while learning will be a unique feature of the program. This is a cooperative arrangement with local businessmen where students will receive on-the-job training which carries college credit as well as a salary.

The students will travel with and assist selected local service technicians as they perform their work. The work experience will reinforce the student's class and laboratory work at the college.

The study of electricity and refrigeration will be covered in the program. Students also will learn about repairing major appliances such as refrigerators, freezers, air conditioners, humidifiers, dishwashers, garbage disposal units, dryers, washing machines and hot water heaters. Other topics will include heating with electricity, gas and oil and the control mechanisms for various appliances.

HEATING REPAIR — Repairing heating units will be covered in a new Service Technician program which Ulster County Community College will start offering in September. It also will train individuals to do appliance repair work and maintenance and handle air conditioning repairs.

Landscape Grads Hired

STONE RIDGE — All 16 students completing the Landscape Development and Maintenance program at Ulster County Community College this spring have gained employment in the related areas at substantial salaries, Dean of Faculty Robert J. Markes announced today.

The spring semester was started at the beginning of January for these students so they could finish their studies prior to Easter and be available for employment beginning early in the spring.

"We are most pleased that all the students in this new program have been employed at good salaries," said Dean Markes, "and it speaks very highly for the program."

The program coordinator, David F. Smith, said the students are being employed at salaries ranging from $100 a week plus room and board to over $175 a week. All but two of the positions are for a full 12 months and are not just seasonal.

"This employment picture is most positive," said Smith, "and shows that our students are definitely in demand. If we had had more graduates, we could certainly have obtained employment for them."

Among the firms hiring the students are two managed by members of the Landscape Development Advisory Council at the college who helped to plan this new one-year program. They include the Kingston Garden Center and Kelder Nursery and Landscape Co.

Other firms hiring students for landscape work include Beekman Country Club, Lake Mohonk Mountain House, Rosakranse Construction Co., Playboy Club in New Jersey, Duso Bonsai Nursery, Bonelli Construction Co. and the New York State Environmental Conservation Department. One has gained employment with a North Carolina landscape firm and five are going to be self-employed in landscape business.

Guitar Construction Rescheduled

STONE RIDGE — Classical Guitar Construction, a credit-free course being offered by Ulster County Community College, has been rescheduled to start April 3 and continue on Tuesday nights through June 12.

There will be no class on April 24 during Easter Week.

The start of the course was postponed because the instructor, Abram Chazan, now is in Israel. He has worked at making guitars for the past six years and organized a course in guitar making at the Crafts Students League of New York under Michael Gurian, a prominent New York guitar maker.

The objective of the course is to enable the student to construct a high quality guitar from the very first step to its completion. The materials, handling of tools, effect of atmospheric conditions and applying the finish all will be included.

Course Is Scheduled

WOODSTOCK — The recently formed Woodstock Volunteer Ambulance Corps has instituted a nine-week training course in Red Cross first-aid for its members, beginning April 4 from 7:30 to 10 p.m. in the cafeteria of the Woodstock Elementary School.

Robert Kurzawa of the West Hurley Rescue Squad was guest speaker at a recent meeting and gave an outline of the operations of that unit.

A publicity committee, headed by Lenny Price was appointed. He will be assisted by Mario Cruz and Richard Zario.

The unit's attorney, Richard Anthony, advised the group of its legal rights and responsibilities. He is also drawing up the business structure of the organization.

The next organizational and public information meeting will be held at the Woodstock Elementary School on Wednesnight at 8 p.m. when a board of directors will be appointed as well as a committee to coordinate financing and the purchase of necessary equipment.

The Joiners

Rondout Lodge 343, F&AM will dispense with its regular meeting Monday evening, April 2, in the Masonic Temple, 31 Albany Avenue, in order to devote the entire evening to its annual Ladies Night.

The program which will start at 8 p.m. will feature Clancy, the Wonder Dog, who will be put through his routine by his trainer, Mrs. Kenneth Dittus, and Joe Liquori, well known soloist, will entertain with a program of popular songs, accompanied by Howard Houghtaling.

Refreshments will be served in the dining room following the program and a social hour enjoyed.

Willis Says He's Ready

NEW YORK (UPI) — The injury-prone New York Knicks host an iron-man Baltimore Bullets squad tonight in their fifth successive kickoff of the National Basketball Association playoffs.

Winner in three of the previous four playoff series, the Knicks are counting on physical fitness from Willis Reed and Dave DeBusschere to handle the Bullets, who won the last three regular season games against New York.

Reed says he is completely recovered from an earlier thigh injury and isn't bothered much by the pain from bone spurs in his left ankle. DeBusschere missed several games late in the season because of a hip ailment.

Baltimore, the Central Division champion, has been relying on its starting five most of the way. Coach Gene Shue primarily uses Elvin Hayes at center, Wes Unseld and Mike Riordan at forwards and Archie Clark and Phil Chenier as guards. He substitutes sparingly, but never when the game is close. On occasion, Shue will alternate Hayes and Unseld in the pivot.

New York coach Red Holzman also must decide who gets primary first call at center Reed or Jerry Lucas. Holzman usually switches assignments according to the game tempo, allowing DeBusschere and Bill Bradley to handle the forward slots. The probable matchup at guard will be Walt Frazier on Chenier and Earl Monroe against Clark.

Clark has been the key to Baltimore's success. The pressure playmaker made the Bullets a serious title contender after missing the first half of the season because of a salary disagreement. Shue calls him the difference between Baltimore having a good team and a great club and the proof is apparent since the Bullets haven't lost to New York since Clark returned.

"Tonight's first game is the important one," Frazier opines. "That has to be a tremendous advantage. If we win that one, it gives us a big boost toward a 2-0 lead."

Frazier is relying on Reed and Lucas to control the offensive boards, "while we have to be aggressive on the other end with our penetration and outside shooting."

Reed acknowledges that he'll have to "neutralize" Hayes or Unseld "and open things up for the other guys."

Holzman and his assistant, Dick McGuire, scouted the final Boston-Baltimore game Wednesday night to search for Baltimore flaws and size up the Celtics, who are favored to beat Atlanta in the Eastern Conference semifinals.

The enforced six-day rest after New York's concluding game last Saturday makes Holzman feel his team is in better shape physically than Baltimore.

The second game of the best-of-seven series will be played here Sunday afternoon. The third and fourth games are scheduled for Baltimore next Wednesday and Friday. If additional games are needed, they'll be played here Sunday, April 8, in Baltimore, April 11, and Baltimore, April 13.

Coin Flip Decides the Issue

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers open defense of their National Basketball Association championship tonight with their first playoff opponent the Chicago Bulls, picked by the flip of a coin instead of the toss of a ball.

The Lakers were to have met the Bucks in Milwaukee for a pre-playoff matchup to decide the No. 1 spot in the Western Conference, since the teams finished with 60-22 records and their season series even at 3-3.

But Laker players balked, backed by the NBA Players Association, contending their contract called for only 82 games before the playoffs.

So instead playing a game, a coin was tossed and Milwaukee won the call Thursday, getting the top position, the home court advantage in the conference finals and the Golden State Warriors, fourth in the conference, as a playoff foe instead of third place Chicago.

Two other NBA series also get under way tonight—Golden State at Milwaukee and Baltimore at the New York Knicks.

The opening of the American Basketball Association playoffs finds Carolina entertaining the New York Nets and Virginia at Kentucky.

Just about everyone except the Lakers commented on the coin flip.

"When I was told LA didn't want to play us I couldn't believe it," Bucks Coach Larry Costello said in Milwaukee.

"To me, if you don't have the guts to come in here and play a game for a conference championship—well, it's hard for me to visualize," he said.

Owner Frank Mieuli, whose Warriors said they would rather play Los Angeles than travel to Milwaukee, said, "This decision to use a frivolous toss to decide upon a championship after a long, hard season of 82 games is without precedent in major league sports history."

About the only person to voice some tentative approval was Bulls' Coach Dick Motta, who said, "Maybe we'd just as soon play the Lakers right now, because the Bucks are awfully hot at the moment." Milwaukee has won its last 14 games.

Golden State was second to Los Angeles in the Pacific Division while Chicago finished second behind Milwaukee in the Midwest. If Los Angeles had won the coin flip, the Lakers would have played Golden State in the best-of-7 series and the Bulls the Bucks.

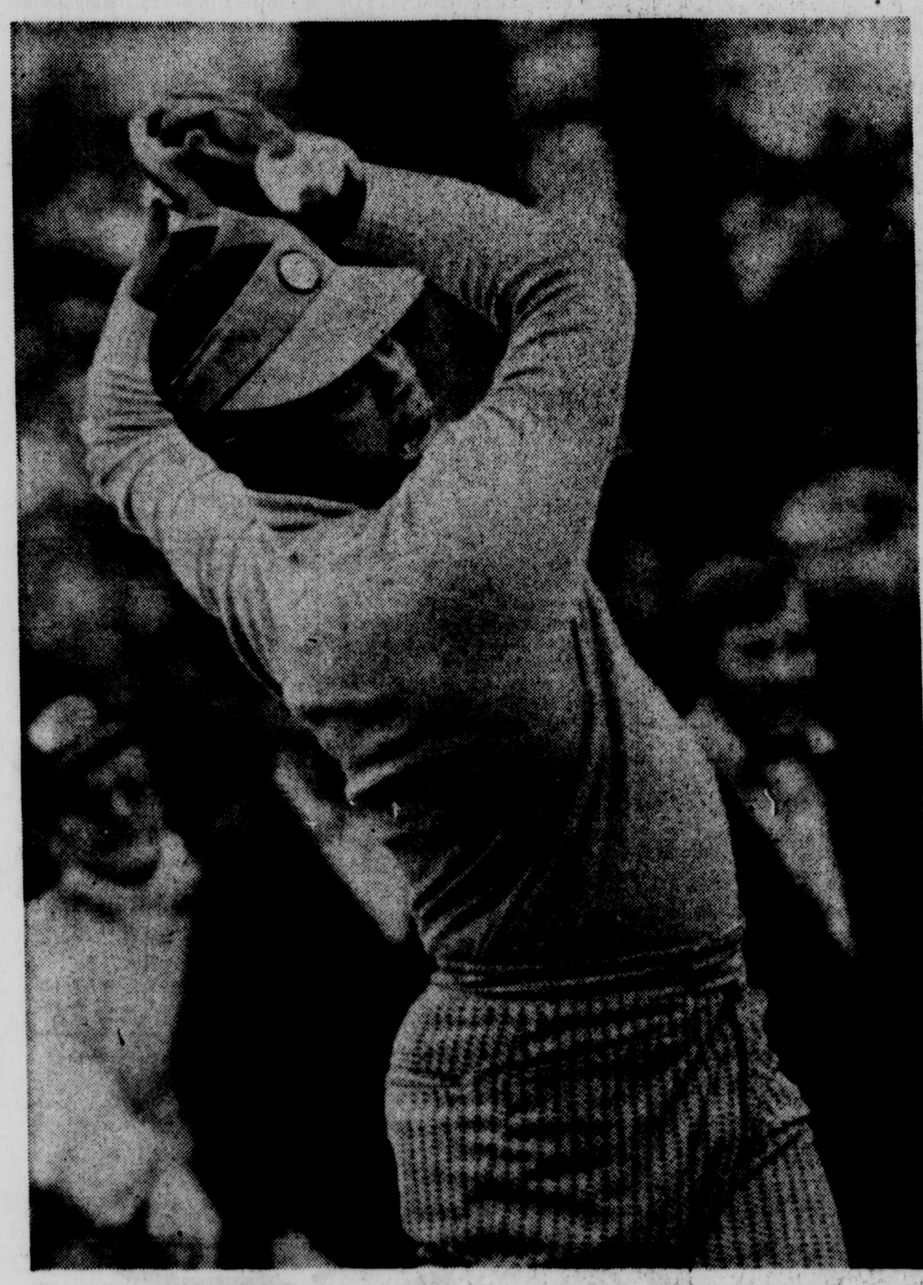

In the ABA, Carolina, coming off a fifth-place finish a year ago, ran and pressed its way to the Eastern crown thanks to the coaching of Larry Brown and the addition of all-star forward Billy Cunningham.

When the playoffs are over, the Nets will lose Coach Lou Carnesecca back to the college ranks whence he came. The Nets finished third a year ago but made it all the way to the finals, only to lose to Indiana and hope history repeats.

WARMUP — New York Knicks' star Walt Frazier takes a busman's holiday Thursday as he plays with youngsters in a lower East Side schoolyard. Walt had just finished working out for the opening game of the NBA playoffs against the Bullets tonight in Madison Square Garden. (UPI)

Lee Likes Those Dreary Days

LEE LEADS — Lee Elder of Washington, D. C., watches his drive go on the ninth tee during first round of the Greater Greensboro Open Thursday. Elder shot a seven-under par 64 to take the first round lead for the second straight week on the PGA tour. (UPI)

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — For Lee Elder, happiness came packaged in a dreary, drizzly day, and now he's praying for more of the same.

A relaxed Elder, well aware that the Greater Greensboro Open is his last chance this year to become the first black golfer in the Masters, turned his clubs into long range artillery here Thursday to blast a seven-under-par 64 for the first round GGO lead.

The 64 on the par 71 Sedgefield Country Club course was Elder's best ever in pro competition, and the second time in as many weeks that he's led the first round of a major golf tournament.

Last week, however, he finished tied for sixth in the Greater New Orleans Open.

Thursday, Elder's beaming smile was the brightest thing in sight as he trooped in out of the wet 48 degree weather to answer newsmen's questions, and he said "if the weather stays this way, it's going to be a different story from last week."

The weatherman predicted cool weather and a 60 per cent chance of rain today.

The wet weather, he said, helped glue his drives to the greens, and after that, it was just "fantastic."

The weather didnt' treat Rod Funseth, Mason Rudolph or Doug Sanders too badly either. They finished one stroke behind Elder at 65 and were followed by a logjam of six golfers clustered at five-under-par.

That group included eight-time GGO winner Sam Snead, still going strong at 60; Ed Sneed, John Lister, Bert Yancey, Butch Baird and Bobby Nichols.

Leading money winner Lee Trevino, who's expecting his share of the $210,000 GGO purse, even if small, to boost his season earnings past the $100,000 mark, was back in the pack with a 71.

Sentimental favorite Arnold Palmer, whose final-day charge here last year ended in a creek surrounding the 16th hole, had a 69, but fared better than defending champ George Archer, who carded a disappointing 74 Thursday.

Elder said that being the first round leader didn't bother him at all and that he wasn't worried about any pressure.

"I'd rather be out front," he said and laughed.

His seven-under card came on seven birdies, five of them on his last nine holes.

"The conditions here were so fantastic," Elder said of the 7,021-yard course.

"It felt great," Elder said, "when that little rain started coming down and you knew that you could fire the ball right at the hole and have it stay on the green.

World Hockey Races In Crucial Stage

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

This is about weddings and funerals...about dying men and their destiny...about playoff hockey teams and also-rans.

Each of Thursday night's four World Hockey Association games had a bearing on the playoff picture.

—Philadelphia 2, Alberta 1. The victory means the Blazers can clinch an East Division playoff spot by winning either of their two remaining games, both at home. The loss put both Houston and Los Angeles in the Western playoffs but left the Oilers in the position of having to win their finale at Minnesota to make it.

—Quebec 5, Minnesota 3. The Nordiques kept their faint hopes alive for edging out Philadelphia while the Fighting Saints need only a tie against Alberta tonight to clinch a spot.

—Ottawa 5, New England 2. The Nationals' 12th triumph in the last 13 games put them in the Eastern playoffs and eliminated the New York Raiders, who lost to Houston 5-3.

In the National Hockey League, Toronto upset Detroit 6-4, putting the Red Wings in the position of having to win their final two games and hoping Buffalo loses or ties its finale. If the Sabres win it, they make the Eastern playoffs. In the only other NHL game, Philadelphia downed Atlanta 4-2 and can take second place in the West by winning both remaining games, or by winning one if Minnesota loses tonight at Vancouver.

Boom Boom Caron's 35th and 36th goals of the season helped Quebec to a 4-2 lead against Minnesota and the Nordiques iced it when Wayne Connolly scored into an empty net with one second left.

"The winner goes to the wedding and the loser goes to the funeral," Coach Harry Heale of the Fighting Saints said later, looking ahead to tonight's clash with Alberta. 'You have to give Quebec credit. They have to win all their games to make the playoffs."

Actually, the Saints need only a tie against Alberta, but each team shows only three ties all season.

Alberta took a 1-0 lead against Philadelphia when Ken Baird scored early in the second period. But the Blazers pulled it out on third-period scores by Bryan Campbell at 8:01 and Andre Lacroix 6½ minutes later.

Gavin Kirk scored three rebound goals in Ottawa's triumph over New England and assisted on a third-period marker by Brian Gibbons. Guy Trottier got the final Ottawa goal.

Knievel Accepts But....

DETROIT (UPI) — Daredevil motorcyclist Evel Knievel seems to be hedging just a bit now that Lee Trevino has accepted his challenge to play golf for $200,000.

Knievel fired off a telegram to Trevino on Thursday telling the golfer where to meet him for the match that the fast-talking, fast-driving stunt artist iniiated.

But he admitted he's not really a scratch golfer, now claiming he can beat Trevino "with the right handicap."

"Dear Super Mex," Knievel said his telegram to Trevino said. "Accept your offer. Bring your airplane and $200,000 in suitcase to airport outside of Chicago, called Shady Acres. Make sure bills are small and come alone. Happy landings. Evel Knievel."

Trevino is competing in the $210,000 Greater Greensboro Open, a pre-masters golf tournament being held this week in Greensboro, N.C.

Knievel is in Detroit to put on his motorcycle show at the state fairgrounds during the weekend. He was given a ticket for speeding in his $25,000 Ferrari while driving to Detroit.

"It's easy to go out and play for Bob Hope's money or Bing Crosby's money," Knievel said, reiterating what he felt when he originally issued the challenge to any pro golfer earlier this month.

"But I'm talking about playing with our own money," he said. "That's a different thing and I think I'll do all right. I've been hustling since I was a kid."

McCune Assumes Firestone Lead

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Don McCune of Munster, Ind., averaged 218 in the first eight games of match play Thursday night to take over the lead in the $125,000 Firestone Tournament of Champions bowling tournament here.

Jim Godman of Lorain, Ohio, who was the tournament leader until the 28th game, was in second place. Roy Buckley of Columbus, Ohio, held third place by eight pins over Dick Weber. Larry Laub of San Francisco was in fifth place.

McCune, who won five and lost three in the first match-game set, had games of 194, 215, 258, 174, 223, 233, 205 and 245 to hold an 82-pin lead over Godman.

Godman had regained the lead in the 31st game over McCune, but had trouble against Don Helling of St. Louis and dropped a 213-186 decision in the final match.

The biggest move of the night was made by Paul Colwell of Tucson, Ariz. The righthander, who made the final spot of the top 24, edged last year's Firestone winner, Mike Durbin of Chagrin Falls, Ohio, by one pin.

Colwell, who wound up in 10th place, started the night with a 163 game but found the line and posted six straight victories before losing to Wayne Zahn, 204-203, in the final game.

All 24 bowlers will wrap up the match game competition with two eight-game sets Friday afternoon and evening, with the top five finishers matching pins for the top prize of $25,000 Saturday afternoon.

Archibald Clinches Title

NEW YORK (UPI) — Not long after the All-Star break, Nate Archibald was asked if he thought he could continue his fantastic shooting pace and possibly finish the season leading the National Basketball Association in scoring.

"No way," Archibald said. "I can't keep this (pace) up and I don't expect to stay over 30. It's easier for the bigger guys to score and it looks like (Kareem) Abdul-Jabbar will probably catch me."

Archibald, only 6-foot-1 and 160 pounds, turned out to be a much better player than prognosticator. The man called "Tiny" finished the season with a league high 34 points per game and edged out the 7-2 Abdul-Jabbar by almost four points per game.

Los Angeles' Wilt Chamberlain finished his 14th regular season with his 11th rebounding championship. His 18.6 caroms per game beat out Golden States' Nate Thurmond's 17.1. Cowens finished third at 16.2 and Abdul-Jabbar fourth at 16.1.

Rick Barry of Golden State led the league in free throw percentage with a .902 mark.

Richman Picks Astros and Angels....Astros and Angels?

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—You go by Las Vegas or Reno, fine, then that means you're looking to see either the Pirates or Reds in the World Series with either the White Sox or Yankees.

I think the oddsmakers do a lot of work and a lot of figuring before coming out with their quotations. They try to take everything possible into account, but frequently they still wind up wrong.

How can anybody foresee tendonitis in the arm or a broken leg? No oddsmaker can; no doctor can.

So when it comes to making selections, I try to consider some of the variables and with those in mind, I like the Houston Astros in the National League and the California Angels in the American.

Remember, I don't say run out and bet all your money on them. I merely say I like them to win.

You want to break it down finer? Okay. Here it is:

National League

East	West
St. Louis	Houston
Pittsburgh	Cincinnati
Montreal	San Francisco
New York	Los Angeles
Chicago	Atlanta
Philadelphia	San Diego

American League

East	West
Baltimore	California
New York	Chicago
Boston	Oakland
Detroit	Kansas City
Cleveland	Texas
Milwaukee	Minnesota

The first question you may have is why Houston? Fair enough.

Most people reckon the Reds are the club with all the horses in the NL West and most of those people could be right, but every year this time I look for certain little signs and I think I've seen some already.

Like this could be one of those Leo Durocher years. And what is one of those Leo Durocher years? Well, for example:

Marvin Miller holds a meeting with Leo's players, a meeting for which he has full authorization. Durocher busts up the meeting and Miller is on the verge of saying something that wouldn't make Durocher look especially good, but he doesn't. Score one for Leo.

Then Durocher is fined $250 for his action by NL President Chub Feeney and Leo says he'll quit before paying it. He hasn't paid the $250 yet. I checked with Feeney and he says he isn't worried. Neither is Durocher. Score two for him.

To me, this has some of the earmarks of Leo's 1954 season with the Giants. Everything went right for him, everything fell into place. You'd look up and there was Dusty Rhodes delivering another pinch hit or Ruben Gomez winning a ball game no one figured he would. The Giants won the pennant of course, then went on to wipe out Cleveland in the World Series four in a row.

That's what you call one of those Leo Durocher years.

Moreover, he has a sound ball club with Houston. In 22-year-old Cesar Cedeno, he has the closest thing to the next Roberto Clemente. He also has such solid bats as Lee May's, Jimmy Wynn's, Bob Watson's and Doug Rader's not to mention an excellent double play combination in Roger Metzger and Tommy Helms, a decent pitching staff and a strengthened bench with the addition of Tommie Agee.

The Cardinals have some excellent punch at the plate with Joe Torre, Lou Brock, Ted Simmons and Tim McCarver and their pitching could be even stronger with Bob Gibson, Scipio Spinks, Rick Wise, Reggie Cleveland, Al Santorini and Jim Bibby. My only question about the Cards is their defense.

Watch Montreal. I think Gene Mauch is going to move the Expos up a few notches this year. His pitching could be stronger, but then you can't have everything.

Over in the American League, I'm taking a flyer on the Angels for four reasons. One I like that deal they made with the Dodgers; two I think their new manager, Bobby Winkles, has a way of getting the most out of people who work for him; three, any ball club that has Frank Robinson always has a chance, and four, Harry Dalton, to my way of thinking, is the No. 1 front office man in baseball today. Never mind that last trade he made—how about the one before that, Nolan Ryan plus three others for who?

I've never run into a more enthusiastic ball club than the White Sox, or two guys who work better together than Chuck Tanner and Roland Hemond. Now if one of them could only pitch.

If there's a way of getting the Rangers out of the cellar, Whitey Herzog will find it. His mind is always open. So is Frank Quilici's, but he simply doesn't have a lot with which to work with the Twins.

The last time I saw Earl Weaver he told me he was worried about Baltimore's hitting, but it'll very likely come around with guys like Earl Williams, Bobby Grich, Merv Rettenmund, Don Baylor, Brooks Robinson and Boog Powell, and so will the Orioles.

No question the Yankees are stronger, but I wouldn't say that about their pitching. Everybody's wondering how Mike Kekich and Fritz Peterson will do. I think they'll do fine, maybe win even more than they did last year. Sparky Lyle is another story. I don't think he'll have anywhere near the year he had last year.

When you tell Billy Martin his Tigers are getting old, he says that's what everybody said last year. Maybe so, but that doesn't change things. The Tigers are even older this year than they were last.

I wouldn't be too surprised if the Indians move up, but I would if the Brewers do. They've got a long way to go, and they ain't gonna make it in the next six months.

Orange Baseballs Get Pink Slip

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Take it from a man who knows—Gaylord Perry—the new orange baseballs are slippery and hard to grip.

The Cleveland pitcher, who has been accused at times of throwing a spit ball, was on the mound Thursday as the gaudy, experimental balls had their coming-out party.

They must have been hard to control, for sure, because 16 runs were scored in a hitter's day that produced an 11-5 exhibition game victory for the Indians over Oakland.

"The pitchers were not able to grip it correctly," said Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, echoing complaints voiced by Perry and Oakland's Jim Hunter.

Kuhn, at the game to watch the use of the fancy balls recommended by A's owner Charles O. Finley, observed Cleveland's George Hendrick hit three of them out of the park.

The baseball czar decided at once that they weren't practical as is.

Finley, who incidentally wasn't on hand to watch the debut of his brainchild, originally felt that a solid orange ball would be better for the batters to see than a white one.

In Thursday's other games, the Cincinnati Reds stopped the Chicago White Sox 5-2; the Kansas City Royals trimmed the Montreal Expos 4-2; the Baltimore Orioles nipped the New York Yankees 3-2; the Atlanta Braves blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-0; the Chicago Cubs tripped the San Francisco Giants 9-8 in 12 innings; the New York Mets beat the St. Louis Cardinals 2-1 and the Boston Red Sox turned back the Detroit Tigers 3-2.

Rain canceled four games—Philadelphia-Houston, Texas-Minnesota and contests involving split Milwaukee squads with Los Angeles and California.

Johnny Bench, apparently recovered from lung surgery over the winter, drove in two runs to pace Cincinnati's victory over Chicago. The Reds' most valuable catcher singled across the runs off loser Terry Forster in the fifth inning.

Wayne Simpson, a trade acquisition this past winter from Cincinnati, allowed only five hits in pitching Kansas City over Montreal in a game halted after seven innings because of darkness. Amos Otis struck a home run for the winners.

The Orioles won their game on Don Baylor's leadoff homer in the eighth off Steve Kline. The Yanks had tied the game in the seventh on Felipe Alou's two-run homer.

Gary Gentry pitched seven innings of scoreless ball as Atlanta defeated Pittsburgh. The Braves scored their winning runs in the first inning on three walks off Luke Walker, a fielder's choice and Dave Johnson's single.

Cleo James' two-out single drove home Glenn Beckert with the winning run to give the Cubs their 12-inning triumph over San Francisco. The game took almost 3½ hours to play.

Jon Matlack limited St. Louis to two hits in seven innings and the Mets scored the decisive run on a throwing error to beat the Cardinals.

Rocky Endorses OTB Report

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI) — Governor Rockefeller and legislative leaders endorsed a commission report on off-track betting Thursday night, virtually assuring a proposed state takeover of legalized wagering systems.

Senate Majority Leader Warren M. Anderson, Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea and Rockefeller, in a brief joint statement, said they strongly supported the findings of the governor's Delafield Commission on the future of horse racing in New York.

"It is apparent that without better integration of OTB with the horse racing industry, both may fail," the statement said.

"Uncoordinated and unrestricted development of OTB can undermine, and possibly destroy, racing by cutting attendance and making it impossible for the tracks to continue in business," the three Republican leaders said.

"A coordinated statewide OTB system" was one of the major recommendations of the Delafield Commission when it issued its report earlier this month, six months after it was appointed to investigate OTB and horse racing.

Other recommendations included:

—Merger of the computer system used by New York City and Schenectady OTB systems into a state system.

—Limiting OTB to "exotic wagering" involving combinations of winners of three or more races—which a New York City spokesman said would eliminate 85 per cent of OTB wagering.

— Continue the current moratorium on additional OTB systems until detailed studies on its impact on racing can be completed.

—Reduce the state tax on track-side bets.

—Increase the amount of OTB wagers which is paid to tracks.

Trout Stream Pollution Pointed Up by TU Group

PHOENICIA

Warning that pollution could cause the demise of the Esopus Creek as one of the great trout streams in the Northeast, Don Warren of Trout Unlimited has urged that steps be taken in this area to preserve it.

Speaking at the weekly dinner-meeting of the Phoenicia Rotary Club, Warren, an Ashokan resident, said that Trout Unlimited is an organization devoted to strengthening and increasing the trout population through improved procedures.

Warren exhibited a Vibert box, a device developed in France which permits trout eggs to progress until ready to move into the stream in which the box is deposited. The box, said Warren, is 90 per cent effective as agasint 30 per cent from hatchery fish. The box recently received the support of the State Conservation Department.

Warren preceded his talk with a film on the life span of a trout in a woodland pool.

In other business, it was announced that the Rotary-Club sponsored ice skating rink on Route 28 adjacent to Scandinavian Village has been closed due to the mild weather. The project will be attempted again next year.

Ali Heavy Favorite Against Norton

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — "Any heavyweight as big and strong as Ken Norton has a chance," former champion Muhammad Ali said.

The oddsmakers don't think that much of the once-beaten ex-Marine's chances, though. They have installed the 31-year-old Ali as a 5-1 choice to beat Norton, 28, in a 12-round fight Saturday.

The bout, for Ali's North American Boxing Federation title, will start at 2 pm PST in the 14,500-seat San Diego Sports arena. However, promoters have indicated ticket sales have been slower than anticipated and they estimate a crowd of about 12,000.

"It's a good thing Norton is as confident as he appears to be," the former Cassius Clay declared. "He better be confident or he has no business in the same ring with me."

For Ali, it will be his 11th start since losing a 1971 fight to Joe Frazier. Since then, he has wins, in order, over Jimmy Ellis, Buster Mathis, Jurgen Blin, Mac Foster, George Chuvalo, Jerry Quarry, Al "Blue" Lewis, Floyd Patterson, Bob Foster and Joe Bugner.

Against the light-hitting Bugner at Las Vegas, Nev., Feb. 14, Ali was unimpressive in scorin g a 12-round unanimous decision.

Ali professes to be unconcerned about new heavyweight champion George Foreman, who is here to watch the fight.

"Why should I fight him (Foreman)?" Ali asked. "I'm making more money than he is. Everybody knows I'm the people's champion."

At 6-foot-2 ½, Ali will weigh 217 to 220 pounds against the 6-3 Norton, who is expected to come in between 205 and 207.

After the Norton bout, the 1960 Olympic Games gold medalist plans on touring Asia for a series of exhibitions. He is scheduled to arrive in Indonesia June 20 where he has a match with Holland's Rudi Lubbefs set at Jakarta.

Ali, who earned $275,000 for fighting Bugner, will get $200,000 here for $50,000 for Norton, whose biggest previous paycheck was $7,500.

The ex-titleholder has a 41-1 record with 31 knockouts compared to the San Diego heavyweight's 30-1 mark with 24 KOs. Norton's only defeat was an eighth round knockout at the hands of Jose Luis Garcia of Venezuela in 1970.

Ali sparred two rounds each with Tony Doyle and Alonzo Johnson Thursday while Norton went two rounds with Eddie "Bossman" Jones and Moleman Williams.

The Ali-Norton match will be shown on national television ABC-TV but will be blacked out live in Southern California.

"This delayed television problem has definitely hurt us," a spokesman for the promoters said. "Los Angeles sales have really dropped off."

ABC-TV in Los Angeles will carry the fight on a tape delay of about two hours and 20 minutes on the networks' "Wide World of Sports" show, Dave Dyer, sports publicist for ABC-TV in Hollywood, said. The bout was scheduled to start about 2:40 p.m. (PST) with ABC telecasting at 5 p.m.

Greensmith said ticket sales peaked early at the $100,000 level and then "tapered off." Sales were expected to be at $200,000 last Friday "and we're just approaching that now," he said.

He also cited a section of state law governing boxing which said, "all televised bouts shall be blacked out within 200 miles of point of origin unless otherwise approved by the commission." He said no exception was granted and promoters were trying to learn how the rule would apply to the delayed showing.

Bucs, Not Phils, In Fame Game

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates, rather than the Philadelphia Phillies, will represent the National League in the annual Baseball Hall of Fame game here Aug. 6, it was announced Thursday.

The switch was made to further honor the late Roberto Clemente, the Pirates' slugging star killed in a plane crash last New Year's Eve.

Clemente was elected to the baseball Hall of Fame last week. He will be formally inducted before the game between Pittsburgh and the Texas Rangers of the American League.

Pirates' President Daniel M. Galbreath and Paul S. Kerr, president of the Hall of Fame, announced the substitution.

AREA HAWKS — New Paltz State's varsity baseball team has strong local representation in (L-R) Bob Speirs, Coach Pete Kramer and Tommy Whitaker. All three have their roots at Saugerties High School where Kramer coached and the two athletes performed. Spiers also put in two years at Ulster County Community College. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

Pitching Is Name of the Game at New Paltz State

NEW PALTZ

If pitching is 70 per cent of baseball as the experts say, then Coach Pete Kramer is in pretty good shape for the 1973 season at New Paltz State College.

The third-year Hawk mentor, coming off a so-so season in 1972, has four holdovers on his seven-man pitching staff buttressed by three standout newcomers. And the Hawks will need all seven, judging by the demanding 31-game schedule that lists nine doubleheaders between April 6 and May 21.

Kramer, an astute coach who knows the game from top to bottom, is also blessed with a veteran infield and veteran catcher. Only in the outfield does the talent appear to be under par, but Kramer can count on some of his to play one or more positions.

"If we get some hitting, we should have an excellent season," said Kramer as he counted his blessings for the upcoming campaign that opens with a home game against Westfield State of Connecticut on April 6.

The Hawks' top returnee is junior Dean Briggs, a 6-2, 205-pound fireballing right hander who won four and lost one in 1972, while compiling a respectable 2.92 earned run average with 48 strikeouts and 24 walks in 43 innings.

The other veterans are:

Rich Malke, a junior left-hander with an unimpressive 1-3 record last season but the pitcher "with the most potential" as Kramer sees it. "Malke is the key to our success," said the coach. "If he puts it all together we will be in good shape."

Tom Williams, a senior from Rondout Valley High, is expected to work mainly in relief.

Sam Strauss, another strong right hander, finished with a 0-5 record in 1972 but Kramer is quick to point out, "He had a lot of bad luck. He had a 2.37 ERA, fanned 27 and walked 19." These are figures hardly associated with an 0-5 record.

Best of the newcomers is Bobby Speirs, by way of Saugerties High and Ulster Community College and two years in service. Speirs, a 25-year-old southpaw, was twice MVP at UCCC and All-DCSL at Saugerties.

Rounding out the staff are Tom Whitaker, another ex-Saugerties product, who can pitch, play first or the outfield and Peter Long, a junior from Patchogue, L.I. "He'll be one of our relief experts," said Kramer.

The No. 1 catcher is veteran John Hernandez, a sophomore who was the second best hitter on the team in 1972 with a .359 average, one homer and three doubles. Dennis Ponte of Yonkers and Frank Tramantano of Ardonia can catch or play the outfield.

The Hawks are solid in the field with four veterans — first baseman Bob Moir, a senior who led the team with a .368 average; Bob Kozak at second, Mike Scammacca, third, and Ben Alberto at shortstop. Art Shapiro, the basketballer, Ponte and Malke or Whitaker also can play the infield, if needed.

Aside from convertibles like Hernandez, Whitaker, and Speirs, the other outfield candidates are all freshmen. The list includes Jeff Krauschaar of Huntington, L.I., Kevin Mancini, a junor tranfer from Nassau Community College; Joe Watson, another transfer from Ulster County Community who did not play baseball at UCCC.

"The pitching is the strongest since I took over three years ago," said Kramer in assessing the Hawks' prospects. "We have a scarcity of proven hitters and we'll have to wait on the newcomers to see if we can pick up some additional power."

The Hawks play three games in two days — April 6 against Westfield, followed by a doubleheader with Oswego State in the SUNY openers the next day. After that comes the usual Eastern vacation trek through Maryland and games with Nyack Missionary College, Albemarle (2) and Chesapeake.

The Hawks will try a new twist this season with tri-captains — Scammacca, Alberto and Briggs — probably on the theory that three are always better than one.

KBT Draws Strongest Field Ever

KINGSTON

A strong 12-team field will be in action when the 21st annual Kingston Basketball Tournament begins Sunday night at 7 p.m. in the Municipal Auditorium.

The rosters, chock full of professional, college, and high school stars, combine to give the KBT classic its best representation of basketball talent in years.

The tournament tip-off pits Edgar's of Kingston, featuring Jumpin' Joe Uhl, against DeFranco Dodge of White Plains. In the night cap, Massa's with Rod Chando, goes up against the Rosendale All-Stars.

First round play continues Wednesday, April 4 at 7:15 p.m. when Highland Falls faces Goshen and C.W.A. of Newburgh battles Villa Mt. Ivy.

Four teams drew byes into the second round. They are defending champion DeMicco Motors, which this year looks stronger than last with a lineup consisting of former New York Knicks and Nets; The Refuge, a team of Bronx ballplayers; always dangerous Felicello's Pipers of Marlboro; and Sickler's Delivery the team of former Ulster County Community College stars which Wednesday won the Hudson Valley tournament in Poughkeepsie.

The second round will be played on Saturday and Sunday, April 7 and 8. Semifinal contests are planned for Saturday, April 14, with the finale due on Sunday, April 15.

The big names in the tournament are on the DeMicco squad. Coming to town will be former Knicks Tom Riker and Milt Williams, ex-Net Joe DePre of St. John's, and former ABA performer Johnny Jones. Also on the team is one of the DUSO's all-time greats, Dave Brownbill of Monticello.

The Refuge brings in many ex-Fordham University standouts including one of the Rams' best, Kenny Charles.

Joining Uhl on Edgar's will be some of the top local talent around including Mike Palladino and Ronnie Burris. The Kingston area flavor also will be in evidence on Massa's which has Stan Henderson, Ray Lindhorst, Mike Derrenbacher, and A. J. Murphy in addition to Chando.

Rosendale has some strong area material as well in Tom Tegeler, George Druttman, and Bernie Schaeffer, Jr.

C.W.A. of Newburgh is the team Sickler's beat in the Hudson Valley shoot out in Poughkeepsie. The familiar figures of Wade Pittman and Larry Frazier of NFA and Rockland Community will be back to join tough Charlie McLaurin and former Goldback big man Jimmy Rogers.

Felicello's which won the Kingston tournament two years ago, still boasts veterans Dick O'Neil, Billy Gray, Steve Aurigemma, and Charlie DelMonico.

Sickler's has not as yet submitted its official tournament roster, but it's safe to assume that fellows like Henry Nixon, Jackie Knowles, Coleman Link, Jerry Moss, and Glenn Berry will be very much in evidence.

The tournament is again being conducted under the auspices of the Kingston Recreation Commission and its superintendent Andy Murphy.

THE PAIRINGS

Sunday, April 7, 7 p.m.—Edgar's vs. DeFranco Dodge; Massa's vs. Rosendale.

Wednesday, April 4, 7:45 p.m.—Highland Falls vs. Goshen; C.W.A. vs. Villa Mt. Ivy.

Saturday, April 7, 7 p.m.—DeMicco Motors vs. winners of Highland Falls-Goshen; The Refuge vs. winner of C.W.A.-Villa Mt. Ivy.

Sunday, April 8, 7 p.m.—Felicello's Pipers vs. winners of Edgar's vs. DeFranco Dodge; Sickler's Delivery vs. winner of Massa's vs. Rosendale.

KINGSTON

Jumpin' Joe Uhl poured in a seasonal high 58 points, but for Boyle's A.C. it was the same old story in the YMCA "A" League. They lost . . . to the Massa's Enterprises, 109-103, Massa's 12th straight victory and Boyle's sixth loss against four wins.

In other game, Ketterer's Bakery jolted Acker's Bar, 65-64, to move past the losers into second place with an 8-3 record. Acker's dropped to third with 8-4.

Uhl collected a seasonal high with 26 fields and six free throws. Kevin Ross added 26 points, but Massa's balance was too much, as five started and five finished in double figures. Rod Chando led with 30 points. Mike Derrenbacher rimmed 27, A. J. Murphy 21, Don Komosa 18 and Tom Fiore 13.

Ketterer's trailed 48-47 going into the fourth quarter, then outhustled Acker's 18-16 in the stretch. Ron Burris led Ketterer's with 21 points and Dave Kane rimmed 16 for Acker's.

Perry Coaches in Classic

STONE RIDGE

Ulster County Community College's Mike Perry will coach the New York State entry in the annual Schoolboy Basketball Classic in Buffalo April 7 and 8.

Perry, one of the top junior college mentors in the country, who directed his UCCC team to a fourth place finish in the recent National Junior College Athletic Association tournament in Kansas, will be working with some of the top players in the state as selected by the New York State Sportswriters Association.

The New York Stars will face Rhode Island at 8:30 p.m. on the first night following the opener between Massachusetts and Connecticut. The winners play the next day.

On the New York roster are: Paul Berwanger, 6-10 superstar from the Cornwall Dragons, No. 1 small school team in the state; Charlie Novak, 6-2 of John S. Burke; Chris Cummings, 6-1 of Monticello; Jeff Jurgens, 6-1 of Cornwall; Warren Premus, 6-2 of Scotia; Jim Towne, 6-8 of Glens Falls, Mike Russell, 6-6 of North Tonawanda; and Ron Carrington, 6-6 of Albany Phillip Schuyler.

The Schoolboy Classic annual attracts the cream of the crop in the four-state area. In its five years history, tournament MVP's have been: Russell Lee, who went on to star at Marshall; Ernie DiGregorio, an All-American this year at Providence; Dennis DuVal, who moved on to Syracuse; Gus Williams, currently heading the University of Southern California team; and Ron Lee, now at Oregon State.

The tournament had been scheduled for March 31-April 1 in Schenectady, but a conflict with another event caused the switch.

KHS Wrestling Gets 'Shot in the Arm'

By STEVE KANE

KINGSTON — Four fine senior athletes and a promising junior gave the wrestling program at Kingston High a shot in the arm this season as the Maroons completed one of their finest performances in recent years.

Though perennial powerhouses Arlington and John Jay again wrapped up the league's first and second position, KHS surged to win six of their final nine meets and finish third in the DCSL standings.

Tri-captains Wil Ortiz, Jim Reedy and John Ollive were the headliners who led the Maroons' success while fellow senior Mark Josefski and junior Lyle Schuler added strong depth to coach Ed Pfeifer's squad of grapplers.

LYLE SCHULER

Ortiz, one of the top 112 pounders in the Hudson Valley, made his last year with Kingston a good one. He stretched his unbeaten record in dual meets to two years, and at the prestigious Mid Hudson Tournament at Dutchess Community College won a first place and the tournament's Outstanding Wrestler award.

In the DCSL championship meet, Ortiz nailed down a second place and went on to match that feat in the Section One qualifying event. In the Sectionals, he dropped his semi-final bout but returned to take the consolation and finish with a third. It was the best Kingston High individual performance in seven years.

Reedy was Kingston's only DCSL champion. He began the season with a fourth place in the Mid Hudson tourney and came on strongly to power the Maroons' finish. He notched a third place in the Section One divisional competition.

Ollive was a steady performer all season long with his finest hour coming at the divisional meet where he placed first in his weight class. In the DCSL meet, he took home a third place.

Maturing in his senior year, Josefski claimed a pair of third place finishes, one in the DCSL tournament and the other in the Section One divisionals. Schuler, with a DCSL second place already accomplished, will return next season to anchor the Maroons' next team.

Experienced

Dutch Deutsch, supervisor of the Eastern area scouts for the Pittsburgh Pirates, formerly played for Elmira in the old Eastern League. He also played for late actor Jim Barton's Nighthawks, a Long Island semi-pro team 25 years ago.

It's Fletcher

Dale Fletcher of Junction City, Kan., will captain Army's 1973 cross-country team.

Your Horoscope

Saturday, March 31

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A fairly unimportant day and p.m. as far as anything of major importance is concerned. Time is best utilized to get rid of all chores and behind-the-scenes personal duties so you do not have to use oncoming important days to complete such things. Be understanding.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Get rid of those small accumulated tasks early, then secure data you need. Plan to help those who are truly in trouble. Don't be fooled by moochers, though. Think logically.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan social activities now and try to please good friends more; do whatever is helpful to them. Those aims you have can be reached more quickly therby. Stop stewing over some situation; do something wise about it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study those civic affairs that can prove to be most helpful to you in the days ahead. Look into your credit and government responsibilities and get them handled well, or plan how to do so. Relax tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Look into the information you already have so you know how to expand more quickly in the future. Make those new contacts who have the knowledge you need. Spend more time with mate in p.m.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Follow your hunches today, since they are apt to be more accurate and will lead you properly, help you to communicate better with others. Cooperate with an associate and don't be disappointing to him or her. Avoid moochers.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have to be conscientious in handling problems today, especially where money is concerned. Mate can be most helpful. Show tact in straightening out some situation with one who is important to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Show more thoughtfulness for others and more mutual happiness results. Handle those personal matters well without further procrastination. Show you are an efficient, kind person.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get into the ordinary things you like to do which are easy for you and be happy. Improve the state of your present health. More attention to mate brings excellent results now. Show you are indeed devoted.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Although home duties seem boring, they are important just the same, so get them done quickly and well. Make sure that utilities are in fine running order. Don't take any chances with anything today or tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Keep busy at shopping, running errands, handling correspondence, chores that are difficult during busy work week. Then contact friends and relatives you have not seen in some time.

AQUAIRUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan a better budget and get your financial affairs on a more practical basis. Study how to improve your property. Fun with friends in p.m. Think.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Ideal day and p.m. to improve your health and charm so you can be at your best when out soically later in the day and p.m. Budget your money widely and do not spend too much. Avoid one who argues.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be a born humanitarian and should be given a chance to help playmates early in life with their problems so as to bring this quality to the fore early. Give good spriitual training and teach ethics early so your child does not get sidetracked and involved in using this fine quality of compassion to help entirely selfish people. Send to the right schools and the world will be much better for the birth of this youngster. Build up bodily energy through diet.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

ANGRY EX: (Q.) I was having trouble with my boy friend. He thought I was his private possession and told me that I was not to associate with anyone else—girl or boy.

Well, I can't talk to my mother, but I can talk to my girl friend. So I talked to her and she agreed with me that the the only thing I could do was to break up with him.

So that is what I did, but it was my decision, not hers.

Now he is blaming her for breaking us up. He is giving her crucifying looks. He is also threatening me. We are afraid of what he might do. Help!—Trouble in Indiana.

(A.) Your former boy friend was unreasonable and you were right in breaking up with him. But in doing so you broke a rule of friendship.

When a girl breaks up with a boy, she should talk to him and inly him about it. She should not confer with a girl friend beforehand.

Your boy friend found out and he is justifiably angry.

If you had to talk to someone about it first, it would have been much better to talk with your parents or some adult friend. Then he would not have found out.

He will get over being angry, I am sure. But be careful whom you talk with about future boy friends.

EARLY CURFEW: (Q.) I really like this girl. I want to ask her for a date. But my mother has a 10 o'clock curfew on me and makes me wear a suit every time I go out anywhere. I have told her over and over that times have changed but she won't listen.

How can I take a girl out under her rules. I'd be so embarrassed to have to go home while all the other kids are having fun.—18 and Restricted in Connecticut.

(A) I agree that you are restricted—and excessively. Eleven o'clock, even midnight, would not be unreasonable for a boy of 18 on a Friday or Saturday night.

Also, your mother should look around and see how teenagers are dressing these days.

Show this to her. Maybe it will help her to be more realistic.

Whitehead Speech Criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) — Last December, Clay T. Whitehead, a top White House official, made a controversial speech that his critics said was aimed at lessening the power of the television networks by striking at the 592 network-affiliated stations in the United States.

Whitehead, director of the White House Office of Telecommunications Policy, said the average affiliate devoted about 61 per cent of its schedule to network news and entertainment shows.

And, he said, many affiliates don't worry enough about the content of these shows. He said they just run them, pass on all complaints to the networks and "sit back and enjoy the fruits of a very profitable business."

He said a bill the White House was preparing would demand greater responsibility from local stations when those stations sought to renew their broadcast licenses.

His speech was criticized in the industry. But when the bill was introduced it earned the praise of broadcasters. Vincent T. Wasilewski, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, told the annual NAB convention here this week the bill was "a good one."

One question remains: Has Whitehead's speech had the effect of intimidating affiliates and altering their relationships with the networks?

"No," say three station executives who have represented the affiliates in meetings with top network officials this year.

"I think that they (local stations) are concerned, but I don't know that they feel intimidated," said Robert L. King, who stepped down Sunday as chairman of the governing board for ABC's 170 affiliates.

"Fundamentally, there is no basic change that I can detect or perceive at this moment," says Edwin W. Pfeiffer, chairman of the CBS affiliate advisory board that represents 204 CBS affiliate stations.

"The answer is no," says Robert W. Ferguson, chairman of the NBC-TV affiliate board of delegates and executive vice president of WTRF-TV in Wheeling, W.Va.

"I don't think the Whitehead speech did anything more than alert the licensees to the responsibilities that have been ingrained in us from the start," Ferguson said.

"It's obvious that no one ignored Mr. Whitehead's comments," said Pfeiffer, a top executive at WPRI-TV in Providence, R.I. "But I don't feel the fact he made them is being construed as threatening or divisive."

The three executives were polled while attending the NAB convention.

Here is another slam swing from that same IMP match. When North bid four no-trump East inquired the meaning of the bid.

This is permissible in duplicate games. South replied that it was strong but rather ambiguous.

Then East bid five diamonds. South thought a while and went to six clubs.

This made it West's turn to think. He didn't have any defense against clubs or hearts but maybe his partner's five-diamond call had indicated defense. So West passed and opened a diamond.

Three seconds later South had drawn trumps and claimed all 13 tricks.

At the other table East decided to pass his 11 high card points. South opened one heart. North responded two clubs and East backed in with a takeout double.

This takeout double didn't keep North and South from getting to a slam. In fact, they bid it in hearts and would have won a couple of IMPs on the board if allowed to play it. Unfortunately for their well being, West took the save at six spades.

The defense could only collect four tricks so the 500-point loss was worth 10 IMPs to the East-West pair.

THE BEEF HANGS HIGH — Anthony Aprea (L) and Luka Simicevic examine their stock Thursday at Arthur Stern Meat Company in the Bronx. The men, like many other meat packers, are anxiously awaiting April 2, the first day they will actually be able to tell the effects of an "April Fool's Week" boycott of meat from April 1 to 7th. Several organizations have endorsed the boycott. Farmers have threatened to retaliate by withholding animals from market that week . . . and the one following. (UPI)

Meat Ceiling... 'Partway Measure'

By United Press International

Economists called President Nixon's ceiling on record-high meat prices "a partway measure." Cattlemen say it will discourage production. There were charges it was designed to ward off massive protests, but the organizers of the April Fool's Week meat boycott say they plan to go ahead anyway.

Walter Heller, former presidential economic adviser, said in Minneapolis the ceiling was "a partway measure that bespeaks of the administration's desperation."

The president of the American Meat Institute, Herrell DeGraff, said in Chicago the new controls will "bring more problems but not more meat to the American consumer."

Oren Lee Staley, president of the National Farmers Organization, said in Corning, Iowa, farmers will not gain from the price ceiling. NFO membership meetings will be held tonight in 11 Midwestern cities to discuss what action the organization will take, he said.

Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., charged in Washington that Nixon's action was an attempt to "cripple" various boycott efforts, and "now more than ever lower food prices are riding on the success or failure of those boycotts."

In Wilmette, Ill., Mrs. Ethel Rosen, who heads a housewives meat protest in Chicago, criticized the move.

"Nixon is freezing prices at the highest level they've ever been in the history of the country," she said. "We are still advocating a national boycott April 1-8 and meatless Tuesdays until the prices drop."

Gertrude Rebel of Tewksbury, Mass., head of Women Against Skyrocketing Prices, said of the president's price ceiling: "I think it stinks. Our position is to get meat down where it was in February, 1972."

Mrs. Rose West of Denver, leader of a supermarket boycott, labeled the controls "a grandstand play."

Heller said the "economics of it would call for a much more sweeping return to the more effective controls of Phase II. Half a meat loaf is better than none." Heller was an economic adviser to Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy. He is a former economics professor at the University of Minnesota.

Staley said Nixon's statement was unclear but will not change the NFO policy of suggesting that farmers hold cattle, hogs and sheep off the market.

"The giant monopolistic chain store owners have a decision whether they can lower prices or keep the prices where they are and maintain a profit," Staly said. "They will most certainly keep prices where they are."

Food Stamp Use... Complaints 'Nonsense'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is hearing complaints that poor people are using food stamps extravagantly at meat counters, but a welfare-group spokesman says the talk is nonsense.

A boost in food-stamp benefits, amounting to an extra $4 per month for a family of four, will go into effect July 1. Critics of the program, in letters to the department, claim that such increases only fuel higher supermarket prices.

"I don't believe that," says Mrs. Johnnie Tillmon, executive director of the National Welfare Rights Organization. "People don't abuse the bonuses (extra stamps), because they aren't all that much."

Further, Mrs. Tillmon said, the increased stamp benefits will not offset higher food prices. Those, she said, have already outstripped the increase.

The Food and Nutrition Service in USDA, which administers the food-stamp program, says the number of complaint letters is relatively small but is increasing. A typical example:

"If you will just walk behind them (food-stamp shoppers) in the grocery store, you will see them at the meat counter selecting the most-choice meats. They don't even look at the prices, they just load the buggy to the top. You don't even hear them complain about prices."

Mrs. Tillmon, who described herself as a one-time stamp user, said those claims are made by people who do not realize that food-stamp users shop only twice a month, and that often they have to feed large families.

The food-stamp program, now serving about 12.4 million persons, has been expanded greatly since 1969 at the insistence of Congress. Under it, qualified families can buy a specified amount of stamps and then receive bonus coupons to increase their purchasing power in grocery stores.

Senate ITT Hearings... 'Witnesses Lied'

WASHINGTON (U P I) — Some witnesses obviously have lied under oath and may be prosecuted for perjury in the Senate hearings on ITT's alleged efforts to prevent the 1970 election of Chilean President Salvador Allende, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Thursday.

Church would not identify which witnesses he felt had lied during the investigation.

He told newsmen, however, that "it is obvious, based on sworn testimony to date, that somebody has lied. We must take a very serious view of testimony taken under oath."

Church, head of the foreign relations subcommittee on multinational corporations, said he would order subcommittee lawyers to review the entire public transcript. The hearings will be completed after International Telephone & Telegraph president Harold S. Geneen testifies Monday, Church said.

"If it appears that appropriate action should be taken against any witness, I will recommend that the papers be given to the Justice Department for appropriate action," Church said.

One of the main conflicts centers on whether Geneen's offer of a million dollars to the Allende's chief rival in the CIA in July 1970 was intended for social reconstruction or the prevention of Allende's election.

William V. Broe, former chief of clandestien services for the CIA in Latin America, testified, according to a transcript released Wednesday, that Geneen asked him during a July 16, 1970, meeting that ITT funds be channeled through the CIA to Jorge E. Allesandri, who was election. The CIA rejected Geneen's offer.

Senior ITT vice president Edward J. Gerrity and J. D. Neal, an ITT foreign policy advisor, both have given contradictory testimony.

Gerrity testified last Friday that the funds were intended to help with the social reconstruction of Chile, not to prevent Allende's election. He said ITT's purpose was to help Allende with low cost housing and farm programs in the hope this would dissuade Allende from expropriating ITT properties in Chile.

Allende nationalized the Chilean Telephone Company, an ITT subsidiary, after being elected president.

Church said Thursday he planned to recall Neal, who is known to have contacted White House and State Department officials about Geneen's offer, for further testimony.

"Mr. Neal was the man who evidently was to be the messenger to the State Department and the White House," Church said.

Cigarette Smuggling Ring Is Smashed

NEW YORK (AP) — Authorities say they have smashed a mob-linked smuggling ring that allegedly cheated the city and state out of $11 million a year in taxes by trucking in untaxed cigarettes from North Carolina.

Brooklyn Dist. Atty. Eugene Gold, announcing Thursday the arrest of six men connected with the ring, called it the largest cigarette-smuggling operation ever uncovered.

Gold said the ring brought into the city from North Carolina an average of 100,000 cartons of cigarettes a week—representing a loss of tax revenue of about $230,000.

Alleged kingpin of the operation was Anthony Granata, 35, of Brooklyn, described by authorities as associated with the organized crime family of Joseph A. Colombo Sr.

Deputy Police Commissioner William P. McCarthy, head of the department's organized crime control bureau, called Granata the largest supplier untaxed cigarettes in the nation.

Granata was arrested Thursday as he allegedly directed the unloading of 11,000 cartons of bootlegged cigarettes within 200 feet of a Brooklyn police station.

Arrested along with Granata were Robert Lisante, 58, of Brooklyn; William Katz, 30, of Kew Gardens, Queens; George Paliso, 23, and Anthony Lanza, 22, both of Newark, N.J., and James McMurtrie, 28, of Virginia Beach, Va.

Granata figured heavily in a recent State Commission of investigation report on cigarette smuggling. The report said that from September, 1966, to April, 1967, Granata had been responsible for smuggling 1,109,920 cartons of cigarettes into New York.

Outstanding against Granata are state and city tax assessments totaling $2,422,510. Gold said it was difficult to trace Granata's tangible assets and said he continually shifted his base of operations.

The SIC report estimated that smuggling operations cost the city and the state $380 million a year in uncollected excise and sales taxes.
